Former Long Beach resident awaits deportation, advocates call for pardon from governor

Former Long Beach resident Phoeun You is awaiting deportation back to Cambodia, a country he hasn't been to since he was 4 years old. Only a pardon from Gov. Gavin Newsom can keep him in the United States.

"He's actually really stressed out right now and he has a lot of anxiety [...]," said Darien Ong, an organizer with the Long Beach Southeast Asian (LB SEA) Anti-Deportation Collective. "He's on edge every day because at any moment he can just be transferred and he can be deported instantly."

The collective has been advocating for the release of You since 2021, after hearing of his plight from the Asian Prisoners Support Committee.

As reported by multiple media outlets, You spent 25 years in prison for committing a gang-related shooting that took the life of one person.

He has been in custody since Nov. 20, 1996, and was granted parole on Aug. 3, 2021, according to the California Department of Correction and Rehabilitation's (CDCR) Inmate Locator.

According to a statement released by multiple immigration advocacy groups, while incarcerated, You graduated from the Victim Offender Education Program, was

Residents will vote on $1.7 billion bond measure to pay for LBUSD facilities upgrades

Briana Mendez-Padilla

Long Beach Unified School District (LBUSD) residents will be able to vote on a $1.7 billion bond measure to fund major LBUSD facility renovations in the upcoming general election.

Given that the district's funding need for capital improvement projects surpasses the funds available, the LBUSD Board passed a measure resolution at their meeting Monday to add the bond measure to the November 18 ballot.

The district passed a $1.5 billion bond measure known as Measure E back in 2016 which was approved with a 74.86% "yes" vote and has brought in hundreds of millions of dollars. Measure E funds are intended for repairs, technology, air conditioning and safety; completion of these projects is still underway.

"There's allocations in place to continue to not just complete those projects, but really fulfill the desire of the voters who helped us pass that bond effort as well," said David Miranda, executive director of facilities development and planning.

The new bond measure is meant to ad-

Long Beach looks to bolster senior housing production, seeks study

How can Long Beach incentivize the creation of senior housing? What projects are underway? Are there funds to build more?

These are the questions that Long Beach City Council members want answers to, and Long Beach City Manager Tom Modica and the Department of Development Services must answer them within the next 60 days.

"As our Long Beach population ages, it's increasingly more and more important for us as a city to think proactively about the needs of our senior community," Councilmember Suzie Price said. "Housing security and availability is a major issue for our senior population in Long Beach."

She noted that it can be difficult to entice developers into building senior housing because "a lot of times the financials just don't make sense."

In Long Beach, 11% of residents are 65 or older, and 10% experience at least one disability, according to the City's most recent Housing Element—a state-mandated report that lays out the city's housing needs, goals and strategies.

Long Beach's annual Point-in-Time Homeless Count, which was released earlier this year, showed that 938 (44%) of the city's homeless population is over the age of 55.

HOUSING

Mayor Keir Jones speaks at a Signal Hill City Council meeting on June 14, 2022. Council meetings returned to in-person meetings at the city's chambers on Tuesday, June 14, 2022, with the condition that hybrid options remain available for people who want to tune in remotely through online Zoom calls.

Newly approved zoning moves Signal Hill closer to initiating major housing developments

Jorge Villa
Staff Writer

On Tuesday, July 12, the Signal Hill City Council approved the reclassification of four property sites to fulfill a state-required obligation to make room for 517 affordable housing units in the city by Oct. 15, 2022.

Every eight years, California cities undergo a Regional Housing Needs Assessment (RHNA) from the state, which requires cities to make room for housing to accommodate demand. Signal Hill was allocated 517 housing units based on the City's population. Signal Hill is currently in its 6th cycle housing element.

Initially, the City needed to submit a final revised draft by February 2022 to Housing and Community Development (HCD), but Gov. Gavin Newsom extended the deadline for the Housing Element Update till Oct. 15, 2022.

During that extension, the City received comments from the HCD on their review of the first draft of the HEU, but no changes were required, according to Community Development Director Colleen Doan.

Some adjustments were made to clarify the Affirmatively Furthering Fair Housing (AFFH) policy, which is a data-gathering research program used to combat discrimination that overcome patterns of segregation and "fosters inclusive communities free from barriers," according to the AFFH document.

With the third draft currently in the process of assessment, Signal Hill must present it to staff by Aug. 15, 2022.

come residence and is expected to construct 267 housing units. Mayor Keir Jones said that the site is adjacent to Rose Avenue and Crescent Heights Historic District, which will provide a pedestrian-friendly restaurant zone. Doan said the space has many residential amenities, including restaurants, bars, tasting rooms and outdoor dining.

Orange Bluff will accommodate the 290 units for extremely low-, very low-, and low-income residents and, in Walnut Bluff, will accommodate 90 moderate-income units required by the 6th Cycle RHNA allocation.

Oil and gas wells will be removed or repurposed for construction

Ahead of the date to authorize the final revised draft of the HEU, the four property sites will see a few of their oil and gas wells repurposed to accommodate the new construction.

Orange Bluff, located on Orange Avenue between 27th and 28th streets, has one active well, which will remain in the interior landscape area. The eight idle wells will be abandoned to allow for the development of the proposed residential project.

Walnut Bluff, located on the corner of Walnut Avenue and Willow Street, will abandon seven oil and gas wells, but the two active wells will remain, and the two idle wells will be abandoned to allow the development of the proposed residential project.

Town Center Northwest is a planned 8.3-acre mixed-use commercial and residential development at the northeast corner of Walnut Avenue and Willow Street. It has 15 oil and gas wells, but all seven idle wells will be abandoned, along with two active wells. Two active wells will remain on site.

Heritage Square, an 8.8-acre mixed-use residential and commercial site along Cherry Avenue between Crescent Heights and Burnett Street, has 20 oil and gas wells on site. All nine idle wells and two of the active wells will be abandoned. Four of the eight abandoned wells will be re-abandoned to accommodate development. One active well will remain on site in a landscaped area in the southwest corner.

Councilmember Lori Woods questioned whether the multifamily units will be smoke-free.

Doan said that "under the goals and objectives of each of the specific plans," the smoking ban would be supportive of developing the units designed as non-smoking to reduce the impacts associated with secondhand smoking.

Councilmember Tina Hansen recalled her first years in office that Las Brisas Apartments, one of the few affordable multifamily housing units in Signal Hill, were not enough.

"Having a job that pays you less than somebody else's job doesn't mean that you should live in a housing that's substandard compared to other people," Hansen said.

A WEEKLY LIST OF THINGS TO DO IN LONG BEACH AND SIGNAL HILL

Another day in paradise” the saying goes, and though Long Beach and Signal Hill have their issues (lack of affordable housing, on-going attempts to increase equity, COVID-19 and now several local cases of monkeypox—the list goes on), the cities still seem like paradise, especially during these warm summer months. And what better way to enjoy them than getting out and participating in your community.

This week offers multiple opportunities to show your support for Roe v. Wade, including a candlelight vigil at the courthouse and a fundraiser at Alex’s Bar.

As you try to beat the heat this week, remember to provide extra care for your plant friends. Our local orchid society is hosting a talk on growing during droughts. (You can find our full feature on the club at www.signaltribune.com.)

If you’re hoping to escape your house this weekend (we’re looking at you, people without centralized cooling), there are plenty of opportunities to get out into one of our many parks or beaches to listen to music or watch a movie—fingers crossed for that lovely sea breeze, and don’t forget your snacks!

Long Beach Unified postpones approval of new student-led green energy policy

Briana Mendez-Padilla

Staff Writer

Over the span of two years, Poly High School student Diana Michaelson grew two inches. What may seem inconsequential to some is symbolic for her, she said, because it represented her growth within the Long Beach Unified School District (LBUSD).

During that time, she went from being a sophomore in high school with hopes to create environmental change to a rising senior empowered by the experience of creating a policy to ensure her school district adopts clean renewable energy.

On July 18, that experience came to a head during a LBUSD Board of Education vote on a green energy policy that would transition LBUSD off of fossil fuels and decrease water and energy consumption. After much anticipation on behalf of student groups, the vote was postponed until August 17 to work on including a specific timeline for goal achievements.

LBUSD's Green Schools Operations Energy Policy 3510.1 intends to address climate change and promote environmental justice through actions such as "ensuring all new and replacement machinery is zero-emissions" and developing a phase-out plan for any current machinery that still depends on fossil fuels.

This new policy is based on the Green Schools Operations Policy 3510, which was written by the California School Board Association and approved by LBUSD in November of 2019. The new policy, however, has been a product of collaboration between district workers, students and teachers.

More specifically, the sustainability engagement consisted of three groups. Firstly, the Long Beach Green Schools Campaign (LBGSC), the Facilities Master Plan Committee and the LBUSD Environmental Sustainability Advisory Committee. There was also overlap among the three as members had the option to participate in more than one committee.

"It just shows their passion for this particular topic," David Miranda, executive director of facilities development and planning, said.

The Green Schools Campaign has been consistently showing up at board meetings and advocating for a 100% clean energy resolution since 2020.

"It's an amazing process to work together, [to] literally type words and see

Our goal has always been to lead, not just to do things out of compliance.

—LBUSD Board Member

them get included in the document," said Michaelson, who is also the founder of LBGSC. "That has been a really empowering opportunity that I've had."

"Never could I have imagined that this campaign would grow the way it did, reaching students, teachers, parents and community leaders all around Long Beach," recent Poly graduate and LBGSC member Kaaya Batra said. "It has been so inspiring to see how many of us share the same passion for the environment, and the same goal of transforming our city and schools into a more sustainable one."

The policy has three clear implementation goals: the establishment of a sustainability task force, further research and engagement on remaining green school practices, and future policy updates.

Miranda also pointed out that sustainability was not only present in the new Green School Operations Energy Policy but it has also been a crucial component and influence in the Facilities Master Plan—a data-driven roadmap for facility enhancement and improvement.

Although the board was set to vote for policy approval on Monday, Board member Juan Benitez made a motion for the vote to be moved to the next board meeting to allow for the inclusion of stronger language that "sets targets for us in terms of dates and timelines to uphold the commitments expressed in the policy."

"The thing that stood out to me was when [Miranda] expressed that we're actually doing more in our district and our vision," Benitez said. "Our goal has always been to lead, not just to do things out of compliance."

The motion was seconded by Board member Erik Miller.

"I love the policy and the process that you all went through to get where we are today. But with any goal, I would not feel comfortable if we didn't set overarching goals and timelines attached to it," Miller said.

Benitez emphasized that the policy is not being tabled, "it is being made stronger."

"The meat, the heart of the policy remains the same; what we're including here are some dates and timelines for the aspirational part of the goals," he said.

Via an Instagram post on July 19, LBGSC said they viewed the motion as exciting news that the policy document will be made stronger.

Despite the demonstration of gratitude towards the board throughout the public comment portion of the meeting from various GSC members and supporters, board member Diana Craighead said she "does not feel worthy of all the praise" as it is the students who deserve it more.

"Students have shown so much determination and grit and persistence. You have had a clear vision of what you've wanted and you have wanted us to pay attention to what's going on with the climate change in the environment and you have wanted us to take action," Craighead said. "And I just want to say that can't be understated, that we don't take that for granted."

Betty, beloved Aquarium sea otter, dies

Staff Report

Signal Tribune

The Aquarium of the Pacific announced Friday, Jan. 15 that Betty, the aquarium's beloved southern sea otter, died suddenly on Thursday, July 14, at 10 years old.

Betty arrived at the Aquarium in March 2012 at an estimated age of 9 to 10 weeks old. She was rescued off Del Monte Beach in Northern California on Valentine's Day. Because she had lost her mother and did not have a chance to learn survival skills, government officials determined she was unable to take care of herself in the wild.

The Aquarium offered her a permanent home and she made her way to Long Beach. She was named after Hollywood icon, animal lover and dedicated Aquarium supporter Betty White. The two met when White visited the Aquarium in 2012 to celebrate her 90th birthday.

In recent months, Betty was one of the adult otters acting as a surrogate for the Aquarium's newly arrived rescued sea otter pups, helping them navigate life at the Aquarium and teaching them new skills—like how to bang clams on a rock to open them up.

"Betty was known for high-speed eating, particularly squid, and her adorable clapping behavior. She will be greatly missed," said Brett Long, Aquarium of the Pacific curator of marine mammals and birds.

Up until her passing, Betty had no known health issues or changes in behavior, according to a statement from the Aquarium. In the coming days, the Aquarium's veterinary team and outside veterinary specialists will conduct an exam to try to determine a cause of death.

involved with Bay Area Women Against Rape, took a sheet metal certification shop class, addiction recovery counseling program, studied non-violent communications, participated in a peer health education program by re-entry nonprofit Centerforce, and received an associates degree in 2015 from Patten University.

“The hardships I would face if deported would be unjust and unnecessary, especially when I have so much that I hope to offer my community here,” You said in a statement LB SEA posted on their Instagram in December 2021.

Instead of being released on parole, You was transferred into the custody of Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE). While CDCR is not required by law to work with ICE, many inmates who are also immigrants are handed over to ICE at the end of their sentences instead of being released.

This practice has been criticized by immigration advocates as excessive and unfair, arguing that it punishes immigrants more than citizens for the same crimes.

In fiscal year 2017, ICE arrested 1,600 people held at CDCR facilities and another 1,100 people in fiscal year 2018, according to a class action lawsuit against ICE.

According to the same lawsuit, between Jan. 1, 2020 and May 13, 2020, approximately 575 people were transferred to ICE custody directly from CDCR.

The LB SEA Anti-Deportation Collective fights against the deportation of Southeast Asian immigrants in Long Beach, leading campaigns asking the public to support detained immigrants from Cambodia, Vietnam and more.

“Not only are they being separated from their families, they’re being sent to a land that they’re not familiar with,” Ong said.

While many Southeast Asian immigrants have lived in the United States under refugee status since they were children, their permanent residency status can be easily lost if they commit a crime. There have been multiple cases of Southeast Asian deportees being sent back to countries they have little or no memory of.

Ong said he is in contact with community members who have already been deported, and recalled the ongoing struggles they face when forcibly removed from the United States.

“They rely on their families here for financial help,” Ong said. “And they feel very isolated over there and all they do is yearn for the chance to be able to come back home where they actually belong. And the transition hasn’t been easy because they are still seen as foreigners on their land too.”

ICE has stated that immigrants who have been detained in California jails and prisons should continue to be transferred directly into ICE custody to await deportation proceedings.

“It is a great injustice for our community and law enforcement officers to see criminals, who pose a risk of reoffending and danger to the public and should therefore be turned over to ICE, released into the public instead,” ICE’s Enforcement and Removal Operations Los Angeles Field Office Director Dave Marin said in a statement sent to the Signal Tribune in May 2020.

The hardships I would face if deported would be unjust and unnecessary.

—Phoan You

Local immigrant advocacy groups, such as the LB SEA Collective and the Long Beach Immigrant Rights Coalition, have voiced their support of a bill that could end the transfer of immigrants in CDCR custody to ICE.

The Voiding Inequality and Seeking Inclusion for Our Immigrant Neighbors (VISION) Act, Assembly Bill (AB) 937, would entitle immigrants to the same rules of release and parole as citizens, preventing them from being transferred to ICE after being granted parole or release from CDCR.

If passed into law, the VISION Act would prevent cooperation between CDCR, California police departments and ICE, such as sharing an inmate’s release date and immigration status.

“Once a Californian has paid their debt to society, and earned their release from our state prisons or jails, they should be released back to society rather than funneled into immigration detention and deportation,” Attorney General Rob Bonta said in a statement in February 2020.

A previous version of the bill, AB-2596, which was co-sponsored by the Sanctuary Long Beach Coalition was killed in committee in May 2020.

The current VISION Act is being considered by the state senate, after being passed by the Senate Appropriations Committee in August 2021.

According to Ong, in June LB SEA members traveled to a rally at the governor’s office in Sacramento to ask that he support the VISION Act but got no response from New-

Notice to Potential Bidders If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a Trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a Trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same Lender may hold more than one mortgage or Deed of Trust on the property. Notice to Property Owner The sale date shown on this Notice of Sale may be postponed one or more times by the Mortgagee, Beneficiary, Trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about Trustee Sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call Auction.com at 800.280.2832 for information regarding the Trustee's Sale or visit the Internet Website address www.Auction.com for information regarding the sale of this property, using the file number assigned to this case, CA08000101-20-1. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Website. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. Notice to Tenant NOTICE TO TENANT FOR FORECLOSURES AFTER JANUARY 1, 2021 You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call 800.280.2832, or visit this internet website www.Auction.com, using the file number assigned to this case CA08000101-20-1 to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. dress the identified needs from the updated Facilities Master Plan—a data-driven roadmap for facility enhancement and improvement approved at Monday’s meeting—and “chip away” at the additional $3.5 to $3.8 billion proposed capital improvement needs, according to Miranda. The cost of the bond over time will be $4.1 billion and will be assessed until 2062.

Miranda said that although the district continues to apply for additional state funding when eligible, local dollars are still necessary to “make a dent into these efforts,” especially as the needs sum is projected to increase over the years.

As per the Facilities Master Plan, there are currently 10 project priority areas that are intended to accomplish the district’s educational mission and vision. Some of these projects include the expansion of green spaces, community and professional development and career technical education.

We need resources to be equitable.”

—LBUSD Board Member
Juan Benitez

Board member Juan Benitez acknowledged a community need for wellness centers and career technical education, but said that this cannot be achieved without the proper facilities which, in turn, cannot be built without adequate funds.

“We cannot even consider passing policies that are not yet before us if we do not have the facilities to be able to implement those policies,” Benitez said. “We cannot fulfill our educational mission and vision.”

Some strategic challenges identified by the plan include the aging facilities and their conditions, declining enrollment and the consequential underutilization of capacity and space, and the expanding needs for a diverse student population such as special needs students.

The district needs at least 55% of the votes to pass the bond measure. If passed, the funds from the sale of bonds are exclusively meant to be spent on implementing the Facilities Master Plan and not any other expenses such as salaries.

The bond measure also includes many transparency efforts such as the establishment of an Independent Citizens’ Oversight Committee and the conduction of annual independent performance and financial audits.

Benitez said that the bond measure and facilities master plan is a crucial aspect of achieving the district’s mission of excellence and equity.

“We need resources to be equitable,” Benitez said.

men and transgender persons who are on HIV pre-exposure prophylaxis (PrEP), (new) gay or bisexual men and transgender persons who attended saunas, bathhouses, sex clubs, circuit parties, or sex parties where they had anonymous sex or sex with multiple partners; and (new) gay or bisexual men and transgender persons with a diagnosis of gonorrhea or early syphilis within the past 12 months.

“We are working with urgency to address monkeypox in our community, and we are especially committed to ensuring that we meet the needs of our highest risk populations—gay and bisexual men in particular,” Mayor Robert Garcia said in a statement. “Our health department is working around the clock to reach out to folks who may be impacted.”

As of July 19, there are currently five confirmed or presumed cases of monkeypox in Long Beach, and all five patients are recovering at home.

The monkeypox vaccine, Jynneos, consists of two doses taken at least four weeks apart. People who receive the first dose of the vaccine will be given cards reminding them to take their second dose.

A limited supply of the vaccine is available and the Long Beach Department of Health and Human Services is working to identify people who are eligible in hopes of offering them vaccination.

Starting Wednesday, July 20, the City will implement an online pre-registration system so people can join a waitlist for the vaccine.

Eligible people who sign up through the pre-registration system will be contacted with information on how to get vaccinated once it’s their turn.

The health department is using texts and emails to contact those who are eligible for the vaccine. Those who receive a message should bring a digital or printed copy to their vaccination appointment.

How monkeypox is spread, Long Beach Health Department guidance

According to a statement by the City, most cases locally and nationally are contracted through skin-to-skin contact.

The Health Department urges people to assess their risk of catching monkeypox, especially when engaged in any kind of sexual or intimate touching with multiple or anonymous partners (including hugging or kissing) or attending an event or area where they will come into skin-to-skin contact with multiple people.

Risk of exposure may increase while attending venues such as clubs, saunas, bathhouses, sex parties and circuit parties where there is skin-to-skin or face-to-face contact with many people, especially if people are wearing minimal clothing, according to the Health Department.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, monkeypox can also be spread through direct contact with monkeypox rashes, scabs or bodily fluids from a person with monkeypox—including during oral, anal and vaginal sex and through sex toys.

The CDC states that having multiple or anonymous sex partners may increase a person’s chance for exposure to monkeypox.

“We are trying to better understand if the virus could be present in semen, vaginal fluids or other body fluids,” the CDC website states.

Symptoms of monkeypox typically include: fever, headache, muscle aches and backache, swollen lymph nodes, chills, exhaustion or a rash that can look like pimples or blisters that appears on the face, inside the mouth and on other parts of the body, like the hands, feet, chest, genitals or anus.

Monkeypox usually resolves itself in two to four weeks, but more severe cases are possible.

Monkeypox is infectious and those who are infected should isolate until they’ve recovered.

People who are experiencing symptoms should call their health-care provider, who will determine the need for testing.

Those who don’t have health insurance and are experiencing symptoms can contact the City’s public health information line at 562-570-7907 for assistance.

“We can’t take our eye off the ball,” Vice Mayor Rex Richardson said.

Long Beach’s Housing Authority website lists 29 different privately-owned, affordable housing complexes with units built specifically for seniors. These include the Carmelitos Public Housing Project, the Senior Arts Colony, the Renaissance Terrace and the Ramona Park Senior Apartments.

The development of Long Beach Senior Housing, a 67-unit affordable housing complex on Pacific Coast Highway, is currently underway.

During public comment, resident Senay Kenfe said that developers are “salivating” over buildings with affordability covenants that are about to expire—they look for buildings like that to buy them and kick out all the old people [...] if you really want to house seniors, we have to do it forever, not just for a slight amount of time.”

The 2021-2029 Housing Element states, “Long Beach has experienced rapid gentrification. Other underserved populations include low-income households, communities of color, immigrants, seniors, and students, who are more likely to be displaced when their units are redeveloped and leased at market rates.”

The plan includes goals specific to senior housing, like utilizing density bonus incentive programs—which give developers funds or discounts in exchange for increasing the number of units they develop—and maintaining mobile home parks.

made a friendly amendment to look at how the city might consolidate its senior housing application after receiving complaints from residents who have to apply to each building individually. She also suggested the inclusion of the Senior Citizen Advisory Commission, a group of residents tasked with advising the council on senior issues.

Councilmember Mary Zendejas requested that the motion include people with disabilities as well—who “have a lot of the same issues that seniors do.” She said that, although she was able to find affordable housing in the past, she could not access some places because they didn’t have elevators for her wheelchair.

“Many of our seniors are differently abled, but if they do have a specific disability, they have an additional hurdle in affordability that we don’t think about,” Price said as she accepted all three amendments.

The report will come back to the council within 60 days.
