Long Beach will explore the balance of homeless services and public safety in six-month update

In an attempt to address public safety concerns amidst the city's homelessness crisis, Long Beach has asked its city staff to explore methods of enforcement for "unsafe uses of public spaces."

The original item, brought forward by councilmember Kristina Duggan, asked staff to explore enforcement mechanisms regarding camping in public spaces.

The item requested staff to research guidelines on the size, structure and cleanliness of encampments, encampments that limit or discourage public access, prohibited "sensitive" areas such as schools, major economic drivers and waterways, prohibitions based on times and availability of shelter beds, and sanctioned campsites.

Many residents accused the council of criminalizing homelessness, while others (most of whom lived in the third district) asked the city to crack down on public spaces, prompting council members to suggest multiple substitutes.

The original motion to research "unlawful uses of public space" was replaced to focus less on enforcement and more on "unsafe uses of public spaces." The new item, suggested by councilmembers Cindy Allen and Al Austin, still asks city staff to research and report how other cities are dealing with homeless encampments in public spaces, but specifies that it will be research-oriented and focus on what the city can and can't do.

The report will be presented to the City Council as part of the six-month homelessness local emergency update in August. City staff will also inform councilmembers on existing restrictions under Martin v. Boise, which requires cities to "provide valid alternatives before enforcing camping laws."

Duggan presented the item, saying that residents in Belmont Shore have been asking for increased public safety measures following an incident where a homeless resident stabbed multiple people on May 30.

She called for a "caring yet firm" approach and wanted to look into "parameters to have for people who are not accepting services." Duggan said that since the city has been working on outreach and services for the duration of the local emergency, many people have had a chance to receive services.

"If services are being offered but not accepted, I think it's reasonable to look at not allowing sleeping up against an elementary school ... or to say you have to maintain access to sidewalks and libraries," Duggan said.

Mayor Rex Richardson said that following high-profile incidents, council members are often "pressured" to take measures regarding public safety.

Residents can vote on Belmont Shore's new sign

Samantha Diaz
Managing Editor

From now until July 7, residents can vote on their favorite of four designs for the new Belmont Shore welcome sign.

The Belmont Shore Parking and Business Improvement Area Advisory Commission unveiled the new designs at a meeting in April. The neighborhood has been without a sign since removing its "Belmont Shore Welcomes You" sign in 2022 due to termites wearing down the wood.

The Belmont Shore Parking Commission will pay for the new sign through its Parking Meter Fund.

The four designs offered in the survey all sit atop a 1920's-style lamp post that will be about 20 feet high and include illumination, according to city documents. Options for the sign slogan include "Welcome to Belmont Shore," "Belmont Shore Welcomes You" and "Belmont Shore," in red, white and blue text options.

One of the options is a call-back to the old design, simply on top of a lamp post rather than on the ground. Another option honors the neighborhood's ties to the beach with the ocean, sand and starfish around the sign.

A red-lettered option goes for a more minimalist, modern design with the LED letters floating with no background. A white-lettered sign features Art Deco styled-letters commonly used in Long Beach in the 1930s. Both signs can substitute other colors, the survey says.

Residents are asked to rank each of the designs after viewing a rendering of what it would look like from a street view. There is also an option to choose "none of the above" as the top choice.

Residents can submit their email in order to receive updates on the new sign.

Fill your summer days with these free activities in Long Beach and Signal Hill

Staff Report

Signal Tribune

Summer officially began on Wednesday, June 21, bringing sunny skies and warmer temperatures to Southern California to confirm the season. Though a trip to the beach or a family vacation may be at the top of summer bucket lists, there are many free, local ways to spend the next few months.

Residents can fill their days and summer nights with free movie screenings, live music, organized sports and other recreational activities at local parks. All activities in this list are free, allowing families to create memories without burning a hole through their budget.

Power Up Your Summer Mondays from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

To encourage an hour of play each day, Long Beach's health and parks departments are rolling out pop-ups at three locations every Monday. From 5 p.m. to 7 p.m., youth can engage in organized play, taste healthy snacks and receive nutrition education.

Dates and locations include:

- Cesar E. Chavez Park (401 Golden Ave.) on June 26, July 3 and July 10
- Houghton Park (3601 Myrtle Ave.) on July 17, July 24 and July 31
- Veterans Park (101 E. 28th St.) on Aug. 7, Aug. 14 and Aug. 21

Summer Fun Days Mondays through Fridays from noon to 5 p.m.

Children ages 5 through 12 can visit select parks to participate in sports, games, arts and crafts and special events throughout the summer every Monday through Friday until Aug. 25.

Participating parks include El Dorado Park West, Admiral Kidd Park, Drake Park, Ramona Park, Silverado Park and more. Pre-registration is required at locations and participants can come and go as they please. Summer Fun Days will not run during the 4th of July holiday.

Caregivers can register a child for Summer Fun Days by visiting or calling one of the 22 locations on the city's webpage.

Be S.A.F.E. (Summer Activities in a Friendly Environment) Mondays through Fridays from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Eleven city parks will be activated and supervised during evening hours Monday through Friday from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. until Aug. 25.

Programs include arts and crafts, outdoor games, sports, science activities, computer labs and more. On Thursdays, residents can enjoy

- Jackson Park, 1432 Jackson St. from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays

Movies in the Park

Varying times and locations

Signal Hill and Long Beach residents can throw down a blanket, plop down and watch a movie with friends and family with nearly 30 movie screenings at local parks this summer. This year, movies will be accompanied by dress-up themes, sing-a-long nights, dance parties and trivia.

Residents can dress up as their favorite Marvel character for the "Doctor Strange" screening, belt out snowman ballads while watching "Frozen", test their choreography for the High School Musical dance party and prove their Disney love during the "Toy Story" screening and trivia.

Movie screenings will travel to multiple parks throughout the week on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays and begin at dusk. Popcorn will be provided for free and residents are welcome to bring their own snacks and dinner.

View a full list of locations and movies on the city's website. For additional questions regarding the 2023 Movies in the Park screenings, call 562.570.3226.

Long Beach Municipal Band

Varying times and locations

Residents can enjoy nature and live music thanks to the Long Beach Municipal Band's 114th season. A new theme will be introduced each week, as the band travels to different locations to serenade attendees.

This year's themes include "United We Stand," a salute to American freedom through music; "Give My Regards to Broadway," which will feature Broadway classics and vocalist Crystal Lewis; "Legends of Song," featuring classic artists' music such as Frank Sinatra and Elvis Presley; "Cinema Classics," where residents can hear iconic scores played live and various other themes.

All concerts begin at 6:30 p.m. and are free to attend. View a full list of themes, vocalists and concerts on the city's website. Dates and locations include:

- Whaley Park – June 27 and July 11
- Bluff Annex Park – July 18, 25 and August 1
- Los Cerritos Park – Wednesdays, June 28 through August 2
- Recreation Park – Thursdays, June 29 through August 3
- El Dorado Park West – Fridays, June 30 through August 4

Pictures from the People: Meet Signal Hill's 'rooster' and other friendly fowls

Our Signal Tribune readers continue to surprise us with their photo entries and the entertaining, heartwarming stories behind them.

Over the past week, we received photos of hummingbirds, hawks and more from a Signal Hill couple whose condo gets a great view of the mountain wildlife behind them. William and Donna Holtz were able to identify each bird through the city's common birds gallery, and received an unexpected surprise from a large red-tailed hawk.

The Holtz's were not the only residents who spotted large hawks proudly perching on light poles, wires and homes. Alicia Hill saw a spying Cooper's hawk hiding in a Signal Hill tree and Crystal Pommet caught two hawks duking it out mid-flight in her neighborhood.

While large hawks fighting overhead are hard to ignore, Crystal

Pommet doubled down on her unique photo entries with the "Signal Hill rooster" Stanley. Hearts were warmed by images of a sleepy peacock, somehow named as a rooster, making its way around town. We will happily accept more photos of Stanley if our readers happen to make his acquaintance.

There's still a week left to send in bird photo entries and join our community of budding photographers. Please send entries or relevant photo prompt ideas via email to Newspaper@SignalTribune.com or to our Instagram @SignalTribune, including your name and information about your photo.

HOMELESS SERVICES

Councilmembers Mary Zendejas and Daryl Supernaw supported the item, pointing out that it only asks city staff to research the topic, not issue new enforcements.

“I understand that criminalizing homelessness is not the solution and I do not believe that’s the intent of this item,” Zendejas said.

Public comment from residents was split between people accusing the council of criminalizing homelessness and people arguing for the necessity of public use enforcements. Some residents asked the city to implement more outreach teams to offer services instead while others said that the best way to get homeless people to accept services is to “take apart” their encampments.

Policies from other cities include:

- The City of Eugene prohibits camping within 1,000 feet of educational facilities which includes daycares and libraries.

- The City of Los Angeles prohibits encampments within specific areas of the city.

- The City of Portland approved a prohibition on camping between the hours of 8 a.m. and 8 p.m.

- The City of Mountain View prohibits RV camping on all streets outside the 3-mile designated area.

- The City of San Jose prohibits encampments within 150 feet of heavily traveled school walking routes.

- The City of San Diego adds protections for waterways.

- The City of Elk Grove requires camping areas to be kept clean and free of garbage, debris, and waste.

- The City of Las Vegas has made it a misdemeanor to camp or sleep in the public right-of-way downtown and in all residential areas if space is available at a shelter.

Vice Mayor Cindy Allen said that she could not support any “policy options” in the item as she had questions about what enforcement would look like. She suggested a substitute item to receive and file the presentation with the six-month homelessness update.

Duggan and Supernaw reiterated that their original motion was already to receive and file the presentation with the substitute.

Councilmember Roberto Uranga said he feared any enforcement would open the city up to lawsuits surrounding Martin v. Boise. Councilmember Joni Ricks-Oddie said that homeless residents can refuse services for a variety of reasons, and it does not mean they’re “happy being on the street.”

“I think some of the language I’m hearing tonight about accepting services almost feels like it’s linking it to people’s right to be treated with dignity and that kind of rhetoric really concerns me,” Ricks-Oddie said.

Councilmembers Suely Saro and Megan Kerr spoke against the item, saying that the city should continue to double down on providing outreach, services, shelter beds and affordable housing rather than enforcement.

“To move forward with this is to move backwards...what we see today is symptomatic of what we have put into our system,” Saro said.

Councilmember Al Austin suggested another substitute item that removed the words “unlawful uses” and combined the presentation with the six-month report, including what police can and can’t do, what other cities are doing about public spaces, tools staff needs to continue providing services and possible safe passage programs.

The six-month update is expected in front of the council in August.

Pet of the week: Sherwin

Sherwin is a 6-year-old little fellow. Shelter staff and volunteers call him small but mighty! Sherwin came to us in mid-May as a stray, and he’s so unusual looking as well as charming that no one can figure out why he’s still here! He has a huge personality for such a little guy, always charming anyone walking by his kennel by happily bouncing around and asking for pets. His adorable facial markings—one little eyebrow and one huge one—make Sherwin look as if he got out of hand with the eyebrow pencil! Come meet Sherwin! Shelter hours are Wednesday through Sunday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., at 7700 E. Spring St. at the entrance to El Dorado Park (no parking fee for shelter visitors). You can email PetAdopt@longbeach.gov to speed the process for adopting or fostering Sherwin. Ask for ID#A 69853 ).

A group of outdoor enthusiasts join for Hike, Explore, Repeat’s biweekly hikes.

Samantha Diaz

One Long Beach man is trying to get people into nature through hiking to explore the “renaissance for the outdoors.”

Hike, Explore, Repeat will host a community potluck and picnic at Heartwell Park in Long Beach on July 1. The Long Beach-based hiking group will kick off the summer by inviting residents to make friends, explore their surroundings and stay active by connecting them with like-minded folks.

The main message of Hike, Explore, Repeat is “to get people into the outdoors,” said the group’s founder Rigel Gutierrez Perez. What started out as Instagram posts of his hiking adventures has burgeoned into a community-gathering, nature-trekking hiking group that comes together every other weekend.

Perez was once what he called a “solo hiker,” someone who ventures through hiking trails and national parks alone, but posts about his adventures on social media. He would often receive messages to host hiking groups of his journeys, but the pandemic quickly provided more interest as people found solace from lockdowns in the outdoors.

According to a People and Nature survey, 46% of people said they were spending more time outdoors during the pandemic than before in July 2020.

Perez started Hike, Explore, Repeat in April 2021 to connect people through nature. As a longtime Long Beach resident, he said he’s hoping to get more people from the city involved through their community picnic.

In the past few years, Hike, Explore, Repeat has traveled through Griffith Park, Malibu trails, Strawberry Peak, Zion National Park and many other Southern California scenic spots.

The group has been partnering with other nature and social clubs during hikes such as the Los Angeles Social Club, Los Angeles Friends and the La Muerte Comedy Show for large group hikes and community outreach. The groups had gathered for food drives, community cleanups, homelessness outreach and other social events.

“If we work together we grow together,” Perez said.

Perez said their recent hike at Griffith Park with other organizations brought over 700 eager explorers, and their local hikes often bring over 50 people together.

Long Beach Animal Shelter needs people to foster pets during 4th of July

Kristen Farrah Naeem
Staff Writer

Long Beach Animal Care Services is preparing for an influx of lost pets expected in the wake of 4th of July festivities. To prepare extra space for them in Long Beach’s overcrowded shelter, local animal-lovers are being asked to foster current shelter residents in their homes during the holiday.

Across the nation, 4th of July fireworks lead to an increase in lost pets who become scared and confused from the ongoing noise.

According to the company Pet Amber Alert, animal control services from around the country report a 30% increase in lost pets from July 4 to July 6 each year.

In order to make room for the flood of lost pets, Long Beach Animal Care Services started the Foster the 4th program in 2016. Under the program, community members take dogs and cats into their homes for two weeks, including during 4th of July.

Besides leaving more available space in the shelter, the program also gives shelter animals a much-needed break from the stressful environment of the shelter.

Beach Animal Care Services said. “It’s quite beneficial for them because they can prepare them for adoption.”

If a household wants to keep their foster pet permanently after the program ends, they can fill out forms online, which can be processed without the animal having to go back to the shelter.

Those interested in fostering a pet for the 4th of July should email petfoster@longbeach.gov or visit bit.ly/3X1tH5N.

Residents can also meet the animals available for fostering in-person during the Foster the 4th program’s kick-off event at the shelter (7700 E Spring St.) on Friday, June 23 from 4:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.
