Hundreds of protesters donned keffiyehs, waved Palestinian flags and held up picket signs at the Long Beach Civic Center on Tuesday, during a rally demanding that the city council call for a ceasefire in the ongoing Israel-Palestine War.

"I think the most meaningful thing is just seeing everybody that's not Palestinian, not even Arab, join us at these protests and it makes us feel so much less alone," said Aisha Nuhaily, a first-generation Palestinian-Lebanese immigrant. "And it is just such a relieving feeling. Just seeing you guys all out here, it means the most."

Earlier this month the City of Cudahy, located about a half-hour drive north from Long Beach, passed a resolution to support a congressional resolution that would call for an immediate ceasefire in Israel and occupied Palestine. Similar actions have been taken by Richmond, California; Providence, Rhode Island; and Easton, Pennsylvania.

Long Beach announces construction of Hard Rock Hotel in downtown

Kristen Farrah Naeem

Staff Writer

Long Beach Mayor Rex Richardson announced the construction of a new Hard Rock Hotel in Downtown Long Beach on Monday, Nov. 13.

The new hotel will be built near the intersection of Ocean Boulevard and Pine Avenue, at the site of the former Jergins Trust Building.

"A thriving downtown, a thriving entertainment district, helps to chart a thriving city," said Richardson during the announcement, which was given during a private party adjacent to the future hotel site.

The Long Beach Hard Rock Hotel location will include an underground speakeasy in the famous Jergins Tunnel, 429 rooms, 31 stories, a rooftop bar and an outdoor pool that overlooks Rainbow Harbor.

"We look forward to partnering with [Hard Rock's] entire team," Richardson said. "Let's get to it on construction. We are eager to have this place open and ready as we welcome guests for the 2028 Olympics."

Councilwoman Mary Zendejas thanked Gregory Steinhauer, the developer of the project, and Jon Lucas, COO of Hard Rock International, for "believing in us and investing here in the city of Long Beach."

Richardson and Zendejas both said that the new development is in line with the Grow Long Beach Initiative, an effort by Long Beach to shift away from its dependence on oil revenue and towards five other industries: Aerospace and Aviation; Healthcare; Ports and Logistics; Housing and Education; and Arts, Culture and Tourism.

"I am so proud to be bringing more tourism here to our city, and making Long Beach a true destination city for everyone to come visit," Zendejas said.

Steinhauer said the project will break ground in the summer of 2024 and open in the second half of 2027.

Plans to create the hotel started nine years ago, when now-Congressman Robert Garcia was mayor, said Steinhauer.

"We are honored to be part of this community, and getting the shovel in the ground and a crane in the sky," Steinhauer said.

Female former Long Beach police officer ties firing to harassment complaints; suing City

City News Service

Southern California Local News

A former Long Beach police officer is suing the city, alleging she was wrongfully fired in 2022 for complaining about a supervisor's intrusions into her personal life while also contending she was mysteriously drugged during an off-duty date with a boyfriend and subjected to two unwarranted internal affairs probes.

Alma Magana's Los Angeles Superior Court lawsuit alleges retaliation, sex discrimination and harassment and intentional infliction of emotional distress. Sgt. Jason Lehman, Magana's former supervisor, also is a defendant in the case, in which she seeks unspecified compensatory and punitive damages.

"After diligently working for the LBPB for several years in an exemplary manner, the LBPB and Lehman began pre-textually targeting plaintiff on the basis of her sex/gender by engaging in inappropriate sexual conduct and after she complained, retaliated against her leading up to her termination of employment," the suit states.

A member of the Long Beach City Attorney's Office said his office has not been served with the suit brought Nov. 3 and declined to comment.

Magana began her law enforcement career in 2010 as a police explorer, was hired in March 2014 as a police services specialist and in April 2015 began her courses at the police academy before becoming an LBPB officer, the suit states.

Lehman often quizzed Magana about who she was dating and tried to communicate with her through her personal phone, prompting her to block the sergeant on all her social media accounts due to his "persistent, harassing behavior," the suit states.

Lehman also made Magana meet with him at random locations to try and talk about inappropriate and private topics with her, but when she declined to "succumb to his advances," he harassed her and told her to "step it up" at work or "more proactive," the suit alleges.

Magana filed a complaint about Lehman in November 2020 with her supervising lieutenant, telling him that Lehman "made her hate going to work, but neither the lieutenant nor the department did anything about the problems, the suit states.

CYBERSECURITY

Long Beach investigating 'cybersecurity incident'

Samantha Diaz

Managing Editor

Many online services for the City of Long Beach are expected to be down for several days, as City officials announced early Thursday morning that they identified a "cybersecurity incident."

The City's Department of Technology and Innovation is working with a cyber security consultant firm to identify the source and scope of the incident, as well as potential vulnerabilities that resulted from the incident.

"This is an urgent matter and our City teams are working tirelessly [to] resolve it and avoid any major service interruptions," Long Beach Mayor Rex Richardson said in a message on social media. "We are taking quick action to enhance security and get things back to normal."

As a safety measure, many City of Long Beach online pages have been taken down and will not be available to users until the issue is resolved. In a press release, the City said emergency response systems such as police, fire and its Emergency Communications Center were not affected by the incident.

Richard H. Grant | Signal Tribune

The City announced a hybrid in-person and virtual meeting on Nov. 17 at noon to proclaim a local emergency "caused by conditions or threatened conditions" due to the incident "which if not corrected, constitutes an imminent and proximate threat to the safety of persons and property within the City."

Long Beach email and phone systems are "generally expected" to remain available, and city facilities will remain open on their usual schedules.

The main city website longbeach.gov is expected to be back up by midday Nov. 16, and residents are encouraged to check the City's social media channels for more immediate updates.

No additional information is available at this time, and the City had not responded to questions sent via email at the time of publication.

Long Beach celebrates Native American History Month at Civic Center

Kristen Farrah Naeem
Staff Writer

The sounds of traditional songs and flute music filled the air in the Long Beach Civic Plaza on Tuesday as local Indigenous residents and city officials gathered for a celebration of Native American History Month.

Mayor Rex Richardson said he had previously met with several tribal elders and leaders in order to learn about their experiences, and that he was the first Long Beach mayor to ever do so.

“That was an incredible conversation,” Richardson said. “I heard firsthand the centuries of challenges and obstacles that their families endured by multiple countries trying to lay claim to their lands.”

The land that is currently considered Long Beach was originally inhabited by the Tongva and Acjachemen tribes, who were enslaved by Spanish settlers and missionaries in the 18th century. After Mexico gained independence from Spain in 1821, the mission system was disbanded and the Indigenous people who were previously held at the missions were forced to leave and assimilate.

“I was inspired by those stories of resilience and today was the beginning of a much larger moment of collaboration and partnership between the city of Long Beach and the Tongva community, particularly as we look forward and look to the days ahead, highlighting our city in the years to come,” Richardson said.

Richardson thanked three city employees of Native American descent for joining the Native Employees Organization and helping plan the celebration: Deputy Mayor Lucius Martin, firefighter Jake Hefflin and Cindy Sanchez of the Economic Development Department.

“We certainly recognize this important moment and we look forward to continuing to deepen our relationships and partnerships as we look forward to highlighting our cultural heritage and history in Long Beach, and as we head into the 2028 Olympics and beyond,” Richardson said.

Former LBSU Dirtbag named MLB’s 2023 AL Manager of the Year

Samantha Diaz
Managing Editor

A former Long Beach State Dirtbags player has been named the 2023 Major League Baseball American League (AL) Manager of the Year for his impressive leadership of the Baltimore Orioles in the 2022-23 season.

Brandon Hyde was recognized through a landslide victory, earning 27 of the 30 first-place votes for AL Manager of the Year. He is only the fourth Oriole manager to earn the title.

Hyde played for Long Beach State in 1997, hitting three home runs and racking up 14 RBIs through 40 appearances for the Dirtbags. He went on to play 200 minor league games before managing various teams in the Florida Marlins’ minor league system from 2005 to 2009.

From there, Hyde held multiple coaching positions for the Chicago Cubs from 2013 to 2018.

Hyde became the Orioles’ manager in 2019, when the team was regularly losing over 100 games a season and after the team had just lost its star hitter, Manny Machado. By 2022, the Orioles boasted a 83-79 record and in 2023, they were one of three MLB teams to win at least 100 games, with a 101-61 record.

This past season was the first time the Baltimore Orioles earned at least 100 wins in a season since 1980.

Hyde managed the Orioles through its first American League East title since 2014, and their first No. 1 seed playoff appearance since 2016.

The Orioles were knocked out of the first round of the postseason, dropping three games in a row to the Texas Rangers, who went on to win the World Series.

“I thought we had a really special season, and to win 101 games in the big leagues is so hard to do,” Hyde told local media. “And how we fought for six months and continue to improve. I’m just really looking forward to next year already and just really proud of the year we had.”

Staff Report
Signal Tribune

The Signal Hill Police Department was awarded a $90,000 grant from the California Office of Traffic Safety (OTS) for enforcement and educational programs. The grant is meant to help reduce the number of serious injuries and deaths from reckless or distracted driving.

The grant should last through September 2024 and help the department organize DUI checkpoints, targeted enforcement operations, community presentations and more.

“This funding will strengthen our commitment to public safety in our community,” Signal Hill Police Sergeant Jeff Poor said in a public statement. “We will be able to increase our efforts in making our roads safer for everyone and focus on critical areas such as distracted driving, impaired driving and speeding.”

The grant will provide programs and resources such as:

- DUI checkpoints and patrols focused on stopping suspected impaired drivers.

- High-visibility distracted driving enforcement operations targeting drivers in violation of California’s hands-free cell phone law.

- Enforcement operations focused on the most dangerous driver behaviors that put the safety of people biking or walking at risk.

- Enforcement operations focused on top violations that cause crashes: speeding, failure to yield, stop sign and/or red-light running, and improper turning or lane changes.

- Community presentations on traffic safety issues such as distracted driving, impaired driving, speeding and bicycle and pedestrian safety.

- Collaborative enforcement efforts with neighboring agencies.

- Officer training and/or recertification: Standard Field Sobriety Test, Advanced Roadside Impaired Driving Enforcement and Drug Recognition Expert.

Signal Hill offers new pay benefits to attract police officers from other departments

Kristen Farrah Naem

Staff Writer

The Signal Hill City Council has come to an agreement with the Signal Hill Police Officers' Association to increase the benefits offered to officers who want to leave other city's police departments for Signal Hill.

This is in line with the goals set by the newest police chief Wayne Byerley to attract more personnel to the Signal Hill Police Department (SHPD).

"Our police department, like many others throughout the country, has been working on enhancing our recruitment and retention efforts," City Manager Carlo Tomaino said during Tuesday's council meeting. "It's certainly much more difficult to recruit and retain police officers today than it was just a few years ago."

Under the updated Memorandum of Understanding between the City and the Police Officers' Association, the time officers spent working for other police departments will be applied to SHPD's longevity pay program.

Previously, under SHPD's longevity pay program, officers received increasing bumps in their pay depending on how long they worked for SHPD. Now, officers will receive increased pay for how long they've worked after leaving the police academy, regardless of which department they worked for.

As an example, Byerley said a corporal who previously worked for the Los Angeles Police Department will have her time there applied to her longevity pay.

Byerley said that unlike a new recruit, a lateral hire can be oriented

and ready for the field in about a month.

Under the former longevity pay program, officers received increases in monthly pay after working for SHPD for five years and again after seven years. Under the new program, officers will receive pay increases after five, 10, 15 and 20 years whether they've worked for SHPD or another police force.

The longevity pay increases by milestone are as follows:

- $300 after five years
- $500 after 10 years
- $750 after 15 years
- $1,000 after 20 years

Byerley said he plans to advertise the new lateral recruitment program at dry cleaning businesses, since officers have to get their uniforms dry cleaned.

SHPD also plans to advertise for new recruits at gyms and collegiate sports tournaments.

"At a time when we're seeing a decline in interest to become a police officer, I need to fill critical vacancies to address burnout and ensure we are able to deliver quality services to our residents and support safe staffing levels for our officers," Byerley said to the city council.

THEATRE

Long Beach history gets a magic-filled, comical spotlight in “Terror at the Pike”

The Garage Theatre returns with one of its oldest shows: a five-year episodic tale, with episode one currently taking the stage.

Samantha Diaz
Managing Editor

The Garage Theatre’s last show of the year, “Terror at the Pike,” is an improv-touting, tomato-throwing, laugh-inducing production that shines the spotlight on Long Beach history.

The first part of the five-episode melodramatic tale weaves together Long Beach history and fantastical storylines of magicians, roller coasters and heroes. The only catch—fans will have to wait four years to find out how this tale ends, as episodes will be performed on an annual basis.

This year’s episode is set in Long Beach, 1910 and centers around the hero Rod McGirdlebutt and a rotating cast of heroines and villains. The story was written by one of The Garage Theatre’s founding members Jamie Sweet in the early days of the nonprofit, and is loosely based on the amusement park that once stood where the Pike Outlets are in Downtown Long Beach.

“I love that it’s about Long Beach history and an amusement park that’s now a strip mall that I wish I could’ve seen, but I’m obsessed with the history of it,” said Rob

Young, who has starred in the five-year-long show and is now directing it for the first time.

One of the episodes dives into when the Long Beach harbor was effectively “sinking” due to oil extraction. The eastern end of Terminal Island had dropped about four feet, and the Long Beach breakwater had dropped two feet. In the show, the characters will face a flooding city caused by a nefarious magician.

Image Courtesy of The Garage Theatre
“Terror at the Pike” mixes Long Beach history, humor and an eccentric cast in The Garage Theatre’s third iteration of the show.

When The Garage Theatre first opened, the small group of friends from Orange Coast College’s theater department had no permanent place to host shows, and certainly no money to purchase the rights to other people’s plays. This resulted in many out-of-the-box, eccentric ideas from the founding members, but perhaps none more experimental than the five-year saga, “Terror at the Pike.”

The show first ran from 2005 through 2009, then for a second iteration from 2011 through 2015. Though the stories have remained largely the same, The Garage Theatre remains true to its roots of encouraging creativity and change.

Some inside jokes from the original cast have stayed, tested by time and audiences alike, and some of the idiosyncrasies have been ushered in through the mostly new cast members.

“There’s a script and a story and a plot, but a lot of things are interconnected and the actors have full range to change it, so this show compared to the last show definitely has differences,” Young said.

A recent change came from necessity, as the show usually features a “plucky” Cambodian sidekick character helping the heroes fend off evil. No Cambodian actors tried out for the part this year, and Young said the theater didn’t want to cast someone of a different ethnic background to play a Cambodian character.

Diana Rodriguez swooped in with the necessary acting chops and a bright idea. Reigning from Puerto Rican descent, Rodriguez suggested they feature a Puerto Rican sidekick to represent another population that migrated to California in the 1970s.

“Terror at the Pike” mixes Long Beach history, humor and an eccentric cast in The Garage Theatre’s third iteration of the show.

One thing that has not changed is the beloved tradition of throwing plush tomatoes at the story’s villains. Just under 100 plump, cotton-stuffed tomatoes sit in the Seventh Street studio eagerly awaiting families and friends to show up and participate in their shows.

Like many of the Garage Theatre’s unconventional traditions, its patrons deliver on enthusiasm. In past iterations of the show, people have brought in their own stuffed tomatoes, some larger than the size of their head, and one audience member brought a plush tomato on a string, throwing it toward the villain only to bring it back to himself, until the magician unexpectedly pulled out a pair of scissors and cut the string, prompting laughter from the audience.

Audience members can also enjoy free ice cream during the show while hearing original songs written by Sweet melded in with the show.

“[The show] is very close to my heart,” Young said. “I felt like the company missed it and it’s unique to us.”

“Terror at the Pike” will have shows every night through Nov. 18 at 8 p.m., then take a break for Thanksgiving. Shows will return on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. from Nov. 30 to Dec. 16. Young said the company is planning to add a Sunday matinee to the schedule.

Tickets are $25 for general admission and $18 for students, seniors, military members and teachers. On Thursdays, two tickets can be purchased for $12.50 each.

NoahS’s Arc Foundation will use art to give people a second chance

Samantha Diaz
Managing Editor

The Long Beach family-owned and operated barbecue spot Axiom Kitchen usually spends its days preparing tender brisket, slathered ribs and scrumptious sides. Since this past summer though, they’ve been cooking something else up: a foundation set to make a difference in Long Beach.

NoahS’s Arc Foundation, started by Qiana Williams and her family in August, is an ambitious undertaking which plans to care for families, children, homeless residents and those in need of a second chance.

Before knowing what the foundation would focus on, Williams said the idea has been “a seed for some time.” The foundation was created in honor of her son Noah who died in 2018 as a “testament to the enduring love and cherished memory” his family still holds, the foundation’s website reads.

The foundation hopes to alleviate food and clothing insecurity and housing instability through partnerships and outreach efforts. It will also provide fine arts outings, fine dining, cultural experiences and more to marginalized people who otherwise may not be able to take part in those activities.

“The goal is to show people there’s more in life, there’s this whole other side maybe they haven’t experienced, or maybe they had experienced it and then they fell off and they just want to get back to themselves,” Williams said.

Another goal of the program is to provide free etiquette and dancing lessons for children.

Williams said she was on a positive path as a real estate agent when she was introduced to drugs, fell off and wound up in a rehabilitation center 10 years ago. Through that process, she and other women were put through a program where they were introduced to the arts, writing, poetry readings, live performances and other cultural and artistic experiences.

“It was so transformative for me and it brought me back to what I needed to do for myself and whatever I had lost in that period of time,” Williams said. “So personally for me, I know for a fact that these kinds of things work because I’ve experienced it.”

Along with herself, Williams said multiple women she still speaks to were changed by those experiences as they grew into providing a better life for themselves.

As a new nonprofit, NoahS’s Arc Foundation is currently in the process of planning its programs, acquiring funding and locating a warehouse to work out of. The foundation is currently holding a holiday donation drive, and accepting non-perishable foods, canned goods and holiday treats that can be used to create gift baskets for families in need.

Residents can also donate toys, books and clothing that the foundation will use for holiday gifts for children.

On Nov. 8, the Long Beach's Equity and Human Relations Commission voted to recommend that the city council take the following actions:

- Adopt a local resolution supporting a ceasefire and demand to end violence in Israel and Occupied Palestine, immediately urge the Long Beach congressional delegation to sign onto the Ceasefire Now Resolution (HR786), and allow humanitarian aid and medical supplies in Gaza.

- Identify and support local programs and services that de-escalate Islamophobia and antisemitism; foster community relations, dialogues centering Palestinian and Jewish voices, and mental health for residents affected by the conflict.

- Condemn all forms of hate, violence, apartheid, xenophobia, colonialism, genocide and mass ethnic cleansing.

The Long Beach City Council is not required to take any recommendations made by the City's commissions. As of Nov. 15, no items related to the Israel-Palestine War have been added to the city council agenda.

On Oct. 7, extremist group Hamas launched an attack on Israel, during which 1,400 Israelis were killed. Hamas currently holds around 240 Israeli hostages that were taken during the attack.

In response, Israel has been bombing occupied Gaza in an aerial campaign that has devastated the civilian population of the occupied territory, in what many are calling a genocide. The vast majority of Gazans are not permitted to leave the area, even before the most recent conflict, and are unable to effectively flee the bombing.

According to Gaza's Health Ministry, the vast majority of victims killed by the Israeli bombings have been women and children. The ministry stated that since Oct. 7, over 11,000 Palestinians have been killed in the conflict, with over 4,000 of those being children.

Multiple Jewish Americans spoke in support of Palestinian lives during the rally.

Ted Griswold, a Jewish resident of Long Beach, told the crowd he has been attending Free Palestine rallies since 2014, and recently joined the organization Jewish Voices for Peace.

"I started going to Free Palestine rallies as Israel was bombing Gaza and started to be called an antisemite," Griswold said. "And I just want to call attention to the way that term is being used cynically and in ignorance to discredit those of us here who want to stop Israeli state violence, terrorism, we're seeing carried out on a massive scale right now."

The United States provides military aid to Israel, including over $3 billion last year alone. According to an analysis by Al Jazeera, Israel is estimated to have spent more than $2 billion on bombing Gaza since the recent conflict began.

Congressman Robert Garcia, who represents Long Beach, has voiced his support for additional military aid to Israel. As first reported by local outlet Forthe, the American Israel Public Affairs Committee and the Democratic Majority for Israel PAC are two of Garcia's top campaign contributors.

"It's so important that collectively as a city, we say enough is enough. It really is," said Shirin Senegal, a Palestinian Long Beach resident. "And we cannot continue to keep investing billions of dollars in taking people's lives and in genocide."

The group Long Beach Community United for Peace has started a petition on Change.org which urges the mayor and city council to support a ceasefire in Gaza. As of Nov. 15, the petition has garnered 915 signatures.

Pet of the week:
Smokey & Missy II

Smokey and Missy II were surrendered at the shelter by someone who claimed that they'd found the dogs. When the staff checked their microchips, it turned out that the finders were actually the owners. These two deserve better. November is Adopt a Senior Pet Month, and we hope that Smokey, a senior 13-year old Labrador retriever, will go to a loving home with his caregiver, Missy II, a 7-year-old healthy German shepherd. Smokey has some health issues, but he deserves to live out his years with love instead of prematurely at our shelter. You can speed the process to adopt or foster Smokey and Missy II or any of our other pets by emailing PetAdopt@longbeach.gov or petfoster@longbeach.gov. You can also call (562) 570-4925. Even better, stop by during our walk-in hours every Wednesday through Sunday from 11 a.m.–3 p.m. Our shelter is located at 7700 E. Spring St. Ask for ID#A487310 to meet Smokey and ID#A710081 to meet Missy. We're at capacity, and everyone needs homes!

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 1-844-477-7869 or visit this Internet Web site <http://www.stoxposting.com/sales-calendar>, using the file number assigned to this case 2023-04766. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer" you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call 1-844-477-7869 or visit this internet website site <http://www.stoxposting.com/sales-calendar>, using the file number assigned to this case 2023-04766 to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. "NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: WE REQUIRE CERTIFIED FUNDS AT SALE BY CASHIER'S CHECK(S) PAYABLE DIRECTLY TO "INTEGRATED LENDER SERVICES, INC." TO AVOID DELAYS IN ISSUING THE FINAL DEED". # City launches Shop LB program to encourage local shopping through holiday season

Signal Tribune

Under the neon lights and pastel pink walls of North Long Beach's Dainty Disco, City officials announced its Shop LB program to encourage local shopping this holiday season.

The program will offer rewards to residents who shop at registered small businesses and track their purchases in a new app. The announcement comes weeks before Small Business Saturday on Nov. 25, which encourages residents to explore the local vendors in their city and support them.

"Shop LB is a chance for residents to explore the many one-of-a-kind products and services offered by local retailers, earn rewards, and directly support our community's economic well-being," said Mayor Rex Richardson at the event. "By shopping locally, residents can make a big impact on the Long Beach economy, create jobs, and help our community thrive."

Over 100 small businesses are already registered in the program ranging from shops, eateries, wellness services and more. Businesses not registered can sign up online for free.

Richard H. Grant | Signal Tribune

Here's how to participate and earn rewards:

1. Download the Localight app and create an account
2. Shop at businesses that have the "Shop LB" logo displayed or find businesses through the app
3. Residents will earn points for purchases that will accumulate into cash they can spend at local businesses

"Shop LB will promote all of our local businesses and drive local revenue," District 8 Councilmember Al Austin said. "Dainty Disco is a shining example of why we should support small businesses, especially in this upcoming holiday season."

Long Beach set a goal of generating $1 million in additional spending at local businesses through the end of the year. To further encourage residents to shop local, the city will suspend metered parking prices on Nov. 25 in Downtown Long Beach south of 10th Street, including the Pike Outlets and in Belmont Shore, and public parking lots.

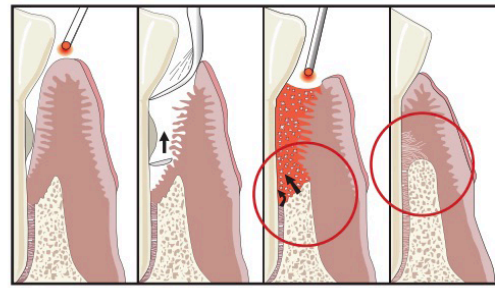

The two-hour time limit on meters will remain in effect. The City Place garages located in Downtown Long Beach will continue to remain free for the first two hours. City Place garages A, B and C are accessible on Third, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Streets, between Pine Avenue and Long Beach Boulevard. No validation is required for the first two hours.

Residents can also earn extra points in the Localight app on Small Business Saturday.
