Signal Hill Petroleum's proposed 20-year permit extension faces strong criticism at public hearing

Signal Hill's report says the extension is "environmentally superior" and guarantees the City's oversight, but residents remain opposed to the long-term project.

ver 50 residents sat, stood or squeezed into empty spots on the floor equipped with signs and strong words of opposition at a crammed public hearing in the Signal Hill City Hall Tuesday night. The subject up for review was a Environmental Impact Report on a 20-year permit extension the City is considering granting to Signal Hill Petroleum. If approved, Signal Hill Petroleum (SHP) will be able to drill up to 46 new oil wells and build 46 accompanying well cellars across its seven drill sites over the next 20 years. SHP currently owns 62 oil wells in Signal Hill, and 95% of the Long Beach Oil Field comprising 1,550 wells.

The Signal Hill City Council Chambers were packed with signs reading "We will not be poisoned in our homes" as Community Development Director Colleen Doan went over details of the recently released Environmental Impact Report (EIR) draft.

Attendees at a public hearing raise their hand in agreement after one of many speakers urge Signal Hill to revoke a 20year conditional use permit to Signal Hill Petroleum on June Doan said the City hired Catalyst Environmental Solutions to compile and analyze data for the EIR, exploring the environmental and health impacts the 20year permit would have on the Signal Hill community. The 300-page report took over two years to draft and was made public on May 6.

The EIR analyzed the effects the project would have on air quality, energy, biological resources, greenhouse gasses, traffic and other factors. All impacts were found to be "less than significant" or able to reach less than significant levels with proper mitigation.

Of the 50 plus residents in attendance, over 30 of whom gave public comments, no one spoke in favor of the permit renewal. Many residents spoke about the odor and noise of the drill sites near their neighborhoods and asked the City to investigate health impacts such as asthma in people who have lived in Signal Hill

Local environmental groups such as Climate Brunch and the Sierra Club joined public speakers, while most attendees cheered, snapped their fingers and raised their hands in agreement.

The No Project Alternative

The draft EIR included alternatives to the 20-year permit extension, such as a No Project Alternative, which would allow Signal Hill Petroleum to continue its current operations but not drill new wells. Similarly, Assembly Bill 1137 will be on the ballot in November, which would prohibit California oil companies from drilling any new oil wells within 3,200 feet of schools, residential areas and hospitals if it passes.

If the No Project Alternative is chosen, Signal Hill Petroleum's current operations would still be able to continue, but without annual City oversight or the guidelines set in the conditional use permit. These guidelines mostly pertain to "community compatibility" such as noise and traffic in the areas surrounding drill sites.

The EIR states it is "reasonably foreseeable" that if SHP can't drill new wells, it would redrill its existing wells more frequently than the current maximum of six per year. This would "potentially" have greater environmental impacts than the 20-year permit extension, according to the EIR.

Workers with Signal Hill Petroleum lower a drill into a well at their Central Unit facility along the east side of Signal Hill on Dec. 5, 2023. The Environmental Impact Report gathered to analyze a potential 20-year permit extension for Signal Hill Petroleum has been deemed as less enivornmentally damaging compared to alternative options, but Signal Hill residents voiced their concerns about the company's plans during a recent public hearing in the Signal Hill City Hall.

Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer of Signal Hill Petroleum, David Slater, explains how the oil pumps located within the parking lot of Ross and The Home Depot in Signal Hill work on Dec. 5, 2023. Signal Hill Petroleum developed the shopping center that surrounds the oil drills, along with several other commercial and real estate developments in the city. The company is now hoping to secure a 20-year permit extension from the City of Signal Hill.

Long Beach celebrates 10 days of craft beer at ISM Brewing

Staff Report

Signal Tribune

Many of Long Beach's beloved breweries will assemble their ales, blondes, pilsners and more for the 15th annual LA Beer Week.

ISM Brewing & Kitchen in Downtown Long Beach will host 10 days of events featuring local brewers, inviting craft beer lovers and the beer-curious alike. From June 14-23, ISM will celebrate Long Beach's craft beer scene by hosting drinks and guests from Ambitious Ales, Ten Mile Brewing, Syncopated Brewing Company, Beachwood Brewing and Blendery, Altar Society Brewing and Coffee Co., Trademark Brewing, Steady Brewing and Belmont Brewing.

The family-friendly event is part of LA Beer Week, an annual county-wide celebration organized by the Los Angeles Craft Brewers Guild with a mission to "promote and protect local independently-owned craft breweries and advocate for the strengthening of the craft beer industry," according to a press release from ISM.

ISM Brewing & Kitchen was founded in 2023 by beer industry veteran and Master Brewer Ian Mc-Call. The downtown brewery has been awarded the California Craft Brewers Cup at the World Beer Cup and a gold medal for the West Coast IPA category for Western Standard

Long Beach's LA Beer Week celebrations will feature daily activations at ISM Brewing & Kitchen:

Friday, June 14 from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m.

The community is invited to kick off the 10-day event with a "Very Long Beach Launch Party" with draft pours and to-go cans. The star of the night will be the new Long Beach Super Collab, a beer brewed at Trademark Brewing in collaboration with ISM Brewing, Altar Society, Beachwood Brewing, Ambitious Ales, Syncopated Brewing, Long Beach Beer Lab, and Ten

Saturday, June 15 from 5 p.m. to 10 p.m.

ISM will host an "Unofficial After-Fest Party" to celebrate the end of the LA Independent Beer Fest hosted by the LA Brewers Guild at Shoreline Aquatic Park earlier that day. Attendees can enjoy draft pours and to-go cans of the newly released Unity Brew, a collaboration between the entire LA Brewers Guild brewed at Boomtown in Los Angeles.

Sunday, June 16 from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Residents can ring in Father's Day at the "Drafts with Dad: A Father's Day Extravaganza," featuring food, drinks and entertainment for the entire family. ISM will host a kid's zone with coloring pages and games on its patio, while local sewist Bitchin Stitchin will host a popup where customers can purchase patches and have it sewn onto clothing at the event.

From 4 p.m. to 7 p.m., local musician Laura Wiley will be performing and taking song requests. The dads of ISM will also present their curated playlist featuring their favorite "Dad Rock."

MISSING PERSONS

Does anyone care that these girls are missing? It doesn't seem like it

Kristen Farrah Naeem

Staff Writer

At least three teens are not only missing from their homes, but from the State's missing person database

Da'kera Jones, Mykala Lindsey and Tessa Linh Mam have been missing for months and are all believed to have traveled separately from other cities in Los Angeles County to the Long Beach area.

All missing people cases from across the state are required to be reported to the State's Missing Person System, and listed on the Department of Justice's public online database. As of June 6, none of these three girls have ever appeared on it.

The Signal Tribune contacted the Department of Justice on June 5 to ask how and why this happened, and has not heard back at the time of publication.

The Signal Tribune was alerted to Jones' and Lindsey's missing persons cases by the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC). The Signal Tribune reached out to NCMEC on May 29 and June 5 to ask why they are missing from the State database and has not heard back by the time of publication.

Mam's missing persons case was shared by the LA County Sheriff's Department's Cerritos Station on Facebook on March 14. The Signal Tribune reached out to the Cerritos

COMMUNITY INPUT

Caltrans asks for public feedback on proposed bike lanes along PCH corridor

Staff Report

Signal Tribune

Residents are invited to give their input on proposed bike lanes along Pacific Coast Highway through an online survey created by Caltrans.

A post by the City of Long Beach's Public Works Department said that "by introducing bike lanes on PCH, community members will be encouraged to arrive to their destinations through alternative methods of transportation."

The bike lanes would begin at the Long Beach Traffic Circle and end at the Los Angeles River Bike Path, and are meant to increase access to the state's highway system.

Caltrans hosted a community meeting on June 6 at the Guidance Center to inform the public about its Bike Lane Project.

Survey takers will be asked to identify their names and council district, as well as answer several multiple choice and one open ended question.

Questions on the survey include the following:

- What is your usual destination when traveling through the PCH
- What is your primary method of traveling through PCH corridor?

Richard H. Grant | Signal Tribune

While Broadway is closed, bikes take over the streets and the bike lanes during Beach Streets on May 20, 2023. Caltrans is asking for public feedback on proposed bike lanes to be added alongside Pacific Coast Highway.

• If the proposed bike lane alternatives were implemented, would you be more likely to consider biking or walking on PCH?

• Do you have any other suggestions or concerns that might improve bicyclist mobility along the PCH corridor in Long Beach?

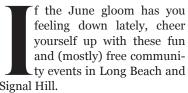

The survey also asks people to choose between three options for the bike lane:

- 1. A protected bike lane using plastic bollards
- 2. An unprotected bike lane
- 3. A protected bike lane separated from the street by concrete landscaping and light poles

To take the survey, visit https:// lbcity.info/CaltransSurvey2024.

SH PETROLEUM EXTENSION

Samantha Diaz | Signal Tribune

Residents held up signs at a Signal Hill public hearing, opposing a potential 20-year conditional use permit for Signal Hill Petroleum on June 4, 2024.

"It sounds like Signal Hill Petroleum is holding these alternatives hostage," a Signal Hill resident who identified himself as Charles said.

SHP would still have to follow guidelines surrounding emission thresholds set by the Southern California Air Quality Management District (SCAQMD) and California Geologic Energy Management (CalGEM).

The company has maintained that they implement their own mitigation measures more stringent than what is required by the City and State.

"A better, healthier future could happen for us and our children. It's time for Signal Hill to phase out oil," said Stephanie Alvarez, an organizer with Climate Brunch.

At the end of the hearing, Doan admitted that "it does sound kind of funny" for the 20-year permit extension to be deemed the environmentally superior alternative, and said the City will try to explain the issue more clearly in the final EIR.

Other Permit

Extension OptionsMore alternatives to the

More alternatives to the 20-year permit extension were 2-year or 10-year extensions.

The 2-year extension predicts that Signal Hill Petroleum would build 10 new oil wells and cellars over this time period, since the company has "indicated" that they would only drill a maximum of five new wells per year. The EIR concluded that this option would reduce emissions of air pollutants and greenhouse gas related to new wells, but similar to the No Project Alternative, redrill operations would likely increase.

With a 10-year extension, Signal Hill Petroleum would still be able to drill 46 new oil wells at its proposed five wells per year. The draft EIR states that "it is reasonably foreseeable that the City would extend the CUP at the end of the 10-year permit period" since it has done so every time since 1998.

According to the draft EIR, Signal Hill Petroleum "would plan to drill two wells per year" if granted the 20-year permit extension. However, if given a 10-year extension, the EIR states "it is more than likely" that SHP would drill the maximum number of wells allowed per year (5), resulting in "potentially higher air and greenhouse gas emissions on an annual basis."

According to the EIR, the City has determined that granting the 20-year permit extension is the "environmentally superior alternative" since it gives Signal Hill oversight on the company while maintaining current conditions.

Signal Hill Petroleum is projected to produce 1,197 metric tons of carbon dioxide per year over the 20-year period, according to the draft EIR. The report compiled data on toxic air contaminants from a North Long Beach monitoring station 4.5 miles from the nearest Signal Hill Petroleum site and a Los Angeles monitoring station 23 miles from the nearest site.

The EIR lists a number of toxic air contaminants reported at these stations by parts per billion by volume, though it states there is no air quality standard for these materials. The highest recorded volatile organic compounds from the North Long Beach station include acetone, formaldehyde and methylene chloride.

"From a public health perspective given the existing evidence on adverse health impacts, it's important to reduce exposures to harmful pollutants where people live, work and play," said Elizabeth Kamai, an environmental epidemiologist.

Next Steps

The decision will ultimately be made by the Signal Hill City Council following a finalized report and a recommendation from the Planning Commission.

The purpose of the public hearing was to receive feedback and questions about the draft EIR from residents. Doan said all comments from the public will be included in the final EIR, and Catalyst Environmental Solutions will attempt to answer all the questions posed.

Multiple residents requested that the council postpone the final decision until after the results of the November election, which includes SB1137. One Long Beach resident, Anna Christensen, asked that Signal Hill host another public hearing in a larger location and make a greater effort to promote it before moving forward in the process. Doan said the City will consider both options.

Richard H. Grant | Signal Tribune Signal Hill Petroleum Chief Operating Officer David Slater looks out over the view of Long Beach from near the top Signal Hill on Dec. 5, 2023. Just below are homes that have been built on the hill, many of which sit on top of depleted oil wells or have active wells just next door.

Residents can send in written comments on the draft EIR until June 24 by emailing cdoan@city-ofsignalhill.org. All submitted comments will be included as an appendix in the final draft EIR.

The City expects for the project to go in front of the Planning Commission in another public hearing in July or August. The Planning Commission will give their recommendation to the City Council, which will host a final public hearing estimated to be held in September, but subject to change.

Part XX a continuing series about HISTO On the Hill

The Hancock Oil Refinery Fire

The May 22, 1958 Hancock Oil Company refinery fire was, to date, the most devastating oil industry calamity to threaten the City of Signal Hill. This inferno, and its huge billowing black smoke columns, raged 52 hours and involved up to 600 firefighters from Signal Hill, Long Beach, Los Angeles County, the U.S. Air Force, and surrounding communities as far away as

Reportedly, the fire was caused by the boiling over of an oil storage tank, which caught fire and spread to seven nearby and the refinery itself. The eight tanks that were burned out held several million gallons of crude oil as well as refined petroleum

The worst threat posed by the fire was the possibility of a nearby tank of extremely toxic Tetra Ethyl igniting. Burning Tetra Ethyl would have mandated an evacuation of everyone within the surrounding community as well as those living downwind from the fire. Consequently, the firefighters worked urgently to keep the Tetra Ethyl tank cool enough to prevent it from exploding.

To the relief of Signal Hill and west Long Beach residents, the firefighters were successful.

Two men were killed in the fire, and several firefighters suffered injuries. Huge clouds of oil fallout were carried over the western portion of Long Beach, resulting oil smut damage to over 8,000 homes. Insurance claims by these homeowners totaled close to $3

Damage to the plant itself was reported to be at least $8 million. The Hancock Oil Refinery was only three years old when it caught fire. The plant's most extensive damage was its tanks. Damage to its TCC (thermofor catalytic converter), the major processing unit in the refinery, was estimated at 30%. Other fire damage included processing machinery such as pumps, motors, turbines, blowers and exchangers. Structural steel and piping were also incinerated beyond salvage.

Within a week alter the fire, wild rumors began to circulate in Signal Hill that Hancock Oil would be selling its operations in the area. Public outcry pleaded for the company to reconsider. The Hancock Company had customarily paid $40,000 annually in property tax to the City, in addition to even larger sums of petroleum products' sales tax. Monetary considerations aside, Hancock Oil had been an integral part of the life of the city since the birth of Signal Hill and many residents felt warmly toward to company.

As the rumor of Hancock's impending sale spread, stock in the oil company rose from $27.50 to $58 per share. When John W. Hancock, president of the corporation, announced June 26, 1958. that the company would be remaining in Signal Hill and rebuilding the refinery, stock prices leveled off at $44.50 per share.

John W. Hancock also voluntarily presented the Signal Hill Fire Department with a check for $4,000 in gratitude for the unselfish determination this city's firefighters had displayed in rescuing the Hancock Oil Refinery from total incineration.

Pet of the week: Caeser

Caeser (that's how he spells his name) is only 2 years old and has spent nearly half his life in our shelter. He's been here since September 2023.

He's affectionate toward people and particularly enjoys sitting on the shelter bench with his favorite volunteers, which include every one that he meets. Caeser takes treats gently—he's a bit rougher on his stuffie toys—and walks well on a leash. He likes playtime but is medium energy. He'd be great in a calm home environment. Caeser deserves his salad days—can you serve them up? Speed the process to adopt or foster Caeser or any of our other pets by emailing PetAdopt@ longbeach.gov or petfoster@longbeach.gov You can also call (562) 570-4925. Our shelter hours are Wednesday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at 7700 E. Spring St. at the entrance to El Dorado Park (no parking fee for shelter visitors. Ask

Long Beach announces Summer of Opportunity for youth

Samantha Diaz

Managing Editor

Long Beach city officials and youth leaders gathered Wednesday for a press conference to announce the Summer of Opportunity Initiative with the goal to reduce violence among youth.

Also known as S.T.R.O.N.G. (Standing Together to Reach Our Next Generation) Beach, the plan has three areas of focus: expanding youth opportunities, preventing violence and encouraging community activation.

"S.T.R.O.N.G. Beach is an initiative focused on fostering positive development among Long Beach's youth while simultaneously reducing the occurrence of violent incidents involving young individuals in our city," according to a memo from the City.

Many of the programs announced have already been in place and will now receive an extra focus over the summer and be integrated across City departments. The plan is also a continuation of the Health

The City of Long Beach recently announced its Summer of Opportunity Initiative with the goal of expanding youth opportunities, preventing violence and encouraging community activation through a variety of summer events programming.

Department's Advancing Peace Initiative.

"Our ultimate goal is to ensure our community is healthy, safe and thriving, and we do this by extending bridges to opportunity and working alongside community partners to address the core issues so we have healthy neighborhoods, not only on the east side, but on the north, central and south sides as well," said Deputy City Manager Teresa Chandler.

Among the new initiatives are summer events held by the Safe Passage Program, which usually only functions during the school year, waived fees associated with hosting neighborhood block parties, and a violence interruption program set to launch in North and Central-East Long Beach this summer. Long Beach parks will also be activated with supervision during the day and will be granted extended hours, though the City has not identified which parks yet.

Community Engagement Deputy and Youth Liaison Monserrat Pineda said the City gathered its areas of focus after conversations and surveys from the inaugural Youth Day in the LBC in May. Pineda said students emphasized a need for violence prevention, community care and planning for the future.
