A sit-down conversation with Signal Hill's mayor

The City's most recognizable pair of glasses, Mayor Keir Jones, talked with the Signal Tribune about his goals for the year, his love for Signal Hill, and yes, oil.

Samantha Diaz | Signal Tribune
Mayor Keir Jones poses in front of Daisy the dinosaur in the children's area of the Signal Hill Public Library on Jan. 14, 2025.

Samantha Diaz
Managing Editor

Keir Jones has always felt at home in Signal Hill. He can remember the moment he and his husband moved from Long Beach and found their "dream place up on the hill" and never looked back. He's since made it his goal that everyone feels the warm welcome that drew him to the city, and now he's ready to usher in the next chapter.

Jones sat with the Signal Tribune on Jan. 14 to talk about his term as mayor, his growth as a councilmember and the future he sees for Signal Hill.

Question: What made you want to get into civic service in Signal Hill?

Answer: In a lot of my leadership roles that I've had in my life, I've been asked to serve, and I'm a very pragmatic person. I try to get inclusion and try to get everyone working towards goals so I listen a lot and I take action. Folks were retiring from city council and someone said, "We really need you to do this" and so I ran.

The first time I ran I lost by one vote and so I'm like, "Oh, I almost won and I really want to do this." So I ran again two years later and was elected. I really love our city, it's really unique, it's a mini version of Long Beach in some ways because it's very eclectic, but it has a small town feeling so you get to know your neighbors. Being on city council, we really do have a lot of opportunity to shape the future of the city and that's why I continue to serve because we really have some great opportunities with our vacant land to build some really special places, to really make Signal Hill continue to be a place where people want to live.

Q: What are some things you're excited for during this term?

A: One of the things I really want to talk about is our opportunity study area. Our economic study area consultant was put into place this year, we'll get reporting throughout the year. So we're looking at redeveloping all of Central Signal Hill, that is north of Willow and South of the 405, and so the report that we get will give us feasibility about what would be successful here, what types of businesses can you attract, what types of residential can you construct? So we'll get the report this year, and then we'll start doing community outreach about that plan and then we hope to create an overlay zone in that area so developers will want to come in and they'll know that this project will be economically viable and they'll already have the zoning in place so that they can construct.

It should be done by the end of the year because it's one of my goals for the year.

Q: What are your other biggest goals for your term?

A: Functional zero homelessness; to continue that. We really made it a priority to hit functional zero last year and we really wanted to make sure we had a sustainability plan to stay functional zero and we're almost at a year now. So, we're still there, and our goal is to continue to serve people in need.

We're really excited to work with the community on, "What does downtown Signal Hill look like?"

Tuesday night marked Mayor Rex Richardson's third annual State of the City event, where a who's who of city VIPs gather for a recap of the past year's accomplishments and a sneak peak of initiatives and plans in the year to come.

This year's theme was "Roots, Rhythm and Connection," as Richardson doubled down on his mission to make Long Beach a cultural and musical destination. To bring the point home, three young musical groups (DJ Jasper X, punk rock band Sugar Skull and R&B trio Daydream) showed off their Long Beach-grown talents.

After Richardson recapped all the artists who grew up in Long Beach or have played at its venues, he brought out legendary hip-hop artist Warren G. The rapper continued on the

HEALTH

These Long Beach locations are giving out free N95 face masks

Staff Report

Signal Tribune

The Long Beach Health Department is distributing free N95 respirator face masks to Long Beach residents over the age of 18 who are at high risk of health impacts from air quality related to the ongoing fires in Los Angeles County, including older adults, people with disabilities, people with underlying health conditions, or people who are immunocompromised.

N95 respirators filter particles, including fine particles from smoke and coarse particles from ash, both of which are respiratory irritants that can cause coughing, wheezing and difficulty breathing.

These face masks will be distributed at all Long Beach Public Library locations, as well as various community centers and senior centers across Long Beach.

Eligible residents are encouraged to pick up masks at any of the locations listed below during their normal business hours. Operating hours vary, so residents should call their preferred location ahead of time to verify they are open. Phone numbers to community centers are available in the online directory.

- All Long Beach Public Library locations
- Admiral Kidd Park Community Center (2125 Santa Fe Ave.)
- Cesar E. Chavez Park Community Center (401 Golden Ave.)
- Drake Park Center (951 Maine Ave.)
- El Dorado Park West Community Center (2800 N. Studebaker Rd.)
- Freeman Community Center (1205 Freeman Ave.)
- Houghton Park Community Center (6301 Myrtle Ave.)

- Long Beach Senior Center (1150 East 4th St.)
- MacArthur Park (1321 Anaheim St.)
- Martin Luther King Jr. Park Community Center (1910 Lemon Ave.)
- McBride Park Community Center (1550 Martin Luther King Ave.)
- Orizaba Park Community Center (1435 Orizaba)
- Silverado Park Community Center (1545 West 31st St.)
- Stearns Champions Park Community Center (1545 West 31st St.)
- Veterans Park Community Center (101 East 28th St.)
- Wardlow Park Community Center (3457 Stanbridge Ave.)
- Whaley Park Community Center (5620 Atherton St.)

The Long Beach Health Department notes that N95 face masks do not reduce exposure to other potentially harmful constituents of wildfire smoke such as toxic gases or vapors. The most effective action residents can take to reduce the risk of health effects from the inhalation of wildfire smoke is to stay indoors in cleaner air and minimize the amount of time spent outdoors in smoky conditions.

However, for those who must be outdoors during smoke events, N95 respirators offer enhanced protection if selected and used properly.

Residents should exercise caution and avoid unnecessary outdoor activities in any area directly impacted by smoke and ash. This includes areas where residents can see or smell smoke. In any area impacted by smoke, residents should take the following precautions:

- Avoid any vigorous outdoor or indoor exertion.
- Remain indoors, especially for people with respiratory or heart disease, those who are pregnant, older adults, and children.
- Keep windows and doors closed or seek alternate shelter.
- Run an air conditioner if available.
- Change the standard air-conditioner filter to a medium or high-efficiency filter. If residents have a wall-unit or window-unit air conditioner, set it to "recirculate."
- Avoid the use of a swamp cooler or whole-house fan to prevent bringing additional smoke inside, if possible.
- Avoid indoor or outdoor wood-burning appliances, including fireplaces, to avoid worsening the health effects of wildfire smoke.

To check your air quality, visit the South Coast Air Quality Management District at aqmd.gov.

For up-to-date information on area fires, visit Los Angeles County's Emergency Response Page at lacounty.gov/emergency.

Residents can sign up for Alert Long Beach to receive free emergency notifications from the City of Long Beach at longbeach.gov.

COMMUNITY

Richard H. Grant | Signal Tribune

Volunteers are needed for several MLK Day of Service opportunities, including a composting workshop and Farm Lot 59 Work Day, both at 2714 California Ave.

Staff Report

Signal Tribune

As Leadership Long Beach gears up for its 16th annual MLK Day of Service, nine volunteer opportunities across Long Beach are still open for sign-ups.

Taking place on Monday, Jan. 20, the MLK Day of Service is a partnership with the California Volunteers, in the Office of the Governor, an agency that mobilizes residents for civic service and volunteer opportunities.

This annual coordinated effort on Martin Luther King Jr. Day invites residents to uphold the legacy of Dr. King by partaking in one of several local cleanups, workshops or restoration projects to uplift the community.

As of Thursday, Jan. 16, nine MLK Day of Service initiatives have already reached their volunteer threshold. Here are the remaining volunteer opportunities:

- Composting Workshop and Farm Lot 59 Work Day – 2714 California Ave.
- Beach Cleanup at Junipero

Beach – 1 Junipero Ave.

- Letters For Older Adults, Pancakes & Purpose Team and Climate Counts Pledge – 1305 E. Pacific Coast Highway
- Young Horizons Fence Restoration – 501 Atlantic Ave.
- Christian Outreach in Action Cleaning and Restoration – 515 E. Third St.
- Wrigley Coffee Hygiene Product Drop Site for LBCC Students – 437 W. Willow St.

For volunteers, the MLK Day of Service begins with the Volunteer Kickoff pancake breakfast from 8:30 a.m. to 10 a.m. at the Trades, Technology and Community Learning Campus of Long Beach City College (LBCC), located at 1305 E. Pacific Coast Highway. Following the breakfast, volunteer projects will begin at 10:30 a.m. Food donations for the Volunteer Center's new pantry as well as full-size hygiene items for LBCC's Basic Needs program are encouraged.

To keep up to date with which MLK Day of Service opportunities are still in need of volunteers, visit leadershiplb.org/mlk.

A WEEKLY LIST OF THINGS TO DO IN LONG BEACH AND SIGNAL HILL

This week is brimming with a variety of events to entertain, educate and engage the local community.

Families with young kids can kick off the weekend with a Bluey-themed night market on Friday, followed by a resource fair at Long Beach City College on Saturday, a kid-friendly sound bath at a local business on Sunday, two story times at different libraries on Monday and Tuesday, and an early math workshop on Wednesday.

Those looking to enjoy some local libations can attend an art show at a Bixby Knolls brewery on Saturday and a whiskey-centric event at a local bar on Sunday.

Residents can engage with their local government and attend two meetings to give feedback on the City's budget for next year, as well as an informational meeting on the new Belmont Beach and Aquatics Center. Youths can also help decide how public funds will be spent at a public meeting on Thursday.

17 FRIDAY

BLUEY NEW YEAR'S NIGHT MARKET

5 p.m. to 9 p.m. Kids and their families are invited to this Bluey-themed Night Market at Par-take Collective (456 Elm Ave.). This family-friendly event gives kids a chance to meet one of their favorite characters, Bluey, in person. Browse through a variety of unique goods from local artisans, enjoy food and beverages from food trucks and vendors, and participate in raffles for a chance to win prizes throughout the night. Free admission.

LIVE THEATER

8 p.m. Experience the live theatrical production "Bull" at the Long Beach Playhouse (5201 E Anaheim St.). The play takes place in 1960s Birmingham, where a local minister enlists the help of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. to challenge the segregation laws enforced by infamous racist Commissioner Eugene "Bull" Connor. The show features gospel music and Southern songs from that era. Tickets are $25 when purchased over the phone or in-person at the box office, and $28 on the theater's website.

18 SATURDAY

JOB FAIR

9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Explore career opportunities in the Parks, Recreation, and Marine Department at Houghton Park (6301 Myrtle Ave.). City staff will provide information on current and upcoming openings for recreation program leaders. Attendees can view job details and complete applications on the City's website. For more information, call 562-570-3150. Free.

PROJECT CRADLE CARE RESOURCE FAIR

10 a.m. to noon. Pregnant individuals and parents with children under 2 years old are invited to Long Beach City College, Liberal Arts Campus (4901 East Carson St., Room T-1200) for this event, hosted by the Gamma Tau Sigma Alumnae Chapter and the LBCC CARE Program, featuring resources, health presentations, vendors, raffles and gift bags for the first 40 parents (one per family). Paid parking is available on-site for $2. Admission is free, but registration is required through Eventbrite.

NATURE WALK

9:30 a.m. This 1.5-hour guided walk along scenic trails in Willow Springs Park (2745 Orange Ave.)

offers the locals an opportunity to connect with nature and their community. Online registration is required through the California Climate Action Corps website. This event may be canceled if air quality is poor. Free.

19 SUNDAY

MINDFULNESS THROUGH SOUND BATH

Noon to 2 p.m. Introduce children to the concept of mindfulness with an interactive sound bath experience at the Fair Trade Long Beach Retail Collective (4105 N. Bellflower Blvd., Unit B). Designed for kids ages 6 to 12, this two-hour workshop helps kids learn to relax and be present through soothing natural soundscapes. Parents are welcome to observe. Space is limited. Tickets can be purchased on Eventbrite for $33.85.

WHISKEY WONDERLAND

Noon to 6 p.m. This is an all-ages futuristic-whiskey-themed event at Roxanne's (1115 E Wardlow Rd.). This event features food and drinks, live performances, distillery tours and local vendors. General admission tickets can be purchased for $28.52 on Eventbrite.

20 MONDAY

LOW-COST VACCINE CLINIC

10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Long Beach Animal Care Services (7700 E Spring St.) and Community Animal Medicine Project will be providing vaccines and services to pets at discounted prices. Services include microchipping, tapeworm treatment, nail trimming, flea/tick treatment and more. All dogs must

SPANISH STORYTIME

2:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. Children of all ages can enjoy Spanish stories read by library staff at the Signal Hill Public Library (1800 E Hill St.). Free.

21 TUESDAY

HEALTH RESOURCE EVENT

4:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. Residents can learn about the City's plans for the upcoming year at the annual State of the City at The Terrace Theater (300 E. Ocean Blvd.). The event is deemed a celebration of Long Beach's roots, rhythms and community, and will include special guest reveals, live performances and a preview of the 2025 Vans Warped Tour. Free, but an online RSVP is required.

22 WEDNESDAY

COMMUNITY BUDGET MEETING

6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Residents are invited to participate in the fiscal year 2026 budget development process at the McBride Community Center (1550 Martin Luther King Jr. Ave.). Attendees can share their priorities for city services and talk about the city's future. For accommodations for those with disabilities, call 562-570-6465 at least 72 hours in advance. Free.

AMPLIFIED AWARENESS MEDITATION

7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Join a guided breathwork meditation and sound bath led by Zaire Black at local nonprofit Compound (1395 Coronado Ave.). This event promotes relaxation and self-discovery through intentional breathing and sound therapy. Bring a yoga mat and blanket; a limited number of mats will be available. Sliding scale ticket options range from $22 to $35 on Eventbrite.

23 THURSDAY

YOUTH POWER PARTICIPATORY BUDGETING

4:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. Young residents aged 12 to 26 are invited to Whaley Park (5620 E Atherton St.) to share their ideas on how public funds should be spent. This is an opportunity to meet other youth advocates and help decide how $550,000 will be allocated for summer programs in Long Beach. Free.

4 p.m. to 6 p.m. Learn the art of photo weaving during this beginner-friendly workshop at the Billie Jean King Main Library (200 W. Broadway). Participants will weave two photographs together to create a unique image. Supplies will be provided, but attendees are strongly encouraged to bring two digital image files of the same size and orientation to be printed out. Free

Do you want it to be super modern? Do you want it to be throwback? Do you want it to look like a Western town? Do you want it to look like an oil town? We want Signal Hill to have its own distinctive look.

The Civic Center master plan, the first element of that is the groundbreaking for the new amphitheater, so we'll have that this year. The new amphitheater is kind of the cornerstone to our whole Civic Center Master Plan. We're hoping, along with the amphitheater that we approved this year, that the terraces and the green space get improved around Signal Hill Park.

Samantha Diaz | Signal Tribune

Signal Hill Mayor Keir Jones' biggest goals for 2025 include continuing the city's functional zero homelessness, creating a distinctive look for downtown Signal Hill and working on the Civic Center master plan.

Q: When you were new on the city council, what made you champion the flag raising?

A: Signal Hill was a majority LGBT council in the early 2000s, and potentially one of the first city councils in the country to be majority LGBT. The council members were really about getting the work done for the city. They didn't make inclusion or diversity really a focus. But of course, Signal Hill really did always celebrate diversity, but it wasn't evident. In fact, a lot of folks didn't even realize that we had an LGBT majority city council, right? They didn't celebrate it, they didn't talk about it, they just got work done.

I know that Signal Hill is a very welcoming place, that's part of the reason I live here is that Long Beach and Signal Hill have always been a very inclusive community. Signal Hill is where I know a lot of the LGBT folks from Long Beach all moved to, and I felt like it was really important to celebrate that history and also make sure people always know that Signal Hill is a welcoming place for all. And I felt like the commemorative flag policy was a great visible way to show, "We see you, we welcome you, we celebrate you. You're part of who we are."

Q: What do you think is the biggest challenge facing the city right now?

Our biggest challenge going forward is having feasible projects that are financially viable for developers that help us achieve our goals. We need to continue to diversify our economic base [...] But we face some significant obstacles in economic development being that we are an oil city and those obstacles are really preventing further development when it comes to housing. So in the coming year we hope to work with our state government and our developers so that we can continue to move away from oil operations to mixed-use residential and commercial development.

Courtesy of Keir Jones

Signal Hill councilmembers and city officials pose for a photo following the first city council meeting of 2025 on Jan. 14, 2025. The council meets on the second and fourth Tuesday of every month at 7 p.m. at Signal Hill City Hall.

Q: With oil, what is your perspective on how it's been working with the very divided, very impassioned interest in Signal Hill being an oil town and moving forward from that.

A: My job, as I see it on city council, is to continue to do what's in the best interest of Signal Hill. Today, our interests are way different than they were 100 years ago, and ultimately, in Signal Hill, we will have no oil production. It will happen. It might not be tomorrow, it might not be next week, it might not be next year, but at some point, that's the ultimate goal, is that it's all cleaned up and we have zero production. And that's my goal.

I think that's what most of the residents and even SHP know that the goal is. So it's really about finding the best way to that goal and making sure that Signal Hill continues to be a safe place for people to live. And if we can progress towards that goal more quickly, that might be ideal. I'm not trying to slow that down in any fashion, but I also understand that our current oil producer, SHP, is in the best position to help us get to zero. I'm working with everyone involved to try to accomplish that goal.

We will hit that goal someday and the goal to get to zero can't be in spite of doing what's best for the city and the residents here. We want it to continue to be a safe place and my goal is to make that happen. We have been impacted by oil production from day one, and have taken every effort to make it as safe as possible for our residents and we'll continue to do that, with the ultimate goal of, you know, oil production will be gone someday.

Our biggest obstacle is the funding to make that happen and our best mechanism today to clean up a site is new development because the new developer comes in and they have to mitigate all those old wells and clean it up. The whole site has to be profitable enough for that to happen, and then it gets cleaned up and then we can move to the next site. So, if we can't develop, we really have our hands tied to make progress towards that goal.

Q: Who is your biggest leadership inspiration?

A: I'm gonna say my stepdad, his name's Chris Magnusson. My stepdad is the reason I moved here. He had his own business and he asked me to help with his business. He just had such a positive, can-do attitude about life overall, and every moment in his life was a reason to celebrate. He was a hard worker, but he was always there to help people achieve what they wanted to achieve. He would find out where you are trying to go, what you're trying to do, and he would work at helping you accomplish that goal.

Q: Favorite book?

A: "The Four Agreements."

Q: Favorite movies?

A: "Groundhog Day," "Scrooged," "Devil Wears Prada" and "Out of Africa."

aspirations, Richardson acknowledged the dozens of tourism-sector workers picketing for higher wages just outside the venue. He said he trusts that the "good faith negotiations" on both sides will lead to a fair solution.

Concession workers at the Convention Center have been in labor negotiations with ASM Global, which manages the Convention Center, since September 2023, and workers voted by a 85% majority Monday to authorize a strike. This came nearly a week after the Long Beach City Council passed a wage ordinance update for these workers that excludes temporary, or agency-hired, staff from the new wages.

The majority of the presentation was about the mayor's plan to make Long Beach a tourist destination for music, entertainment and cultural events. He shared that in 2023, tourism contributed $2 billion to Long Beach's economy.

When Richardson brought up how the city has tackled homelessness in the first two years of his term, shouts of protest erupted from members in the audience. The event was paused briefly while Richardson stepped off the stage, and a woman was escorted out by two police officers while she told onlookers that she was going to get kicked out of her home due to rent increases.

Though most of the night was about what has already been accomplished during the first two years of Richardson's term as mayor, there were a few interesting nuggets of news saved until the end of the night.

Here are the 10 most important pieces of news shared at the 2025 State of the City, minus the fluff:

1. Long Beach will create a subsidy program in an effort to house more seniors, one of the most housing-insecure populations in the city.

2. A new Long Beach Police Academy Training Center will open soon, and the city will double the amount of firefighter academies it hosts in a year in an effort to recruit more firefighters and paramedics.

Samantha Diaz | Signal Tribune

Sugar Skull guitarist, lead singer and Long Beach high school student plays a song at the 2025 Long Beach State of the City on Jan. 14, 2025.

3. The City is relaunching Inside LB, its city-run news blog that publishes columns recapping events, features on residents and deep dives on City programs.

4. The Long Beach Small Business Rebound program will be launched this year, with more than $1 million in resources for small businesses. The program will include low-interest loans for businesses that open in areas with high vacancy rates; a "first-year-free" fee waiver for those same businesses; long term loan renegotiation, counseling services and financial resources for businesses 10 years or older; grants to help businesses acquire security cameras, cashless sale systems, and shatter-proof window coverings. There will be another program for legacy businesses with planning resources, employee stock ownership plans, worker co-ops and other strategies to help keep the business running when the original owner retires.

5. The Mayor asked Chief of Police Wally Hebeish and City Prosecutor Doug Haubert to create a Long Beach Organized Retail Theft initiative to identify additional strategies to protect businesses.

6. A new website, longbeach.gov/2028games, has been launched for residents to track 2028 Olympic planning and progress.

7. Multiple Olympics Community Advisory Committees will be formed, focusing on arts and culture, small businesses, workforce and economic inclusion, and youth sports. There will also be an Olympic Legacy Foundation Advisory Committee that will continue after the 2028 games.

8. The mayor shared rendered images of the planned Long Beach Bowl outdoor amphitheater, which will seat 10,000 to 12,000 people. The City will also work to form a private-public partnership to bring improvements and extensive renovations to the Long Beach Arena.

9. The city will develop an Entertainment Strategic Plan with an accompanying advisory committee to work to bring more entertainment to the city and assure that local businesses benefit from it.

10. Long Beach will explore developing a Sports and Entertainment Walk of Fame to highlight the athletes and entertainers who have come out of Long Beach.

This annual celebration of Dr. King's transcendent legacy and the Black community is presented this year by the City of Long Beach, the Office of Sixth District Councilmember Suely Saro and several sponsors.

The parade will begin at 10 a.m. at the intersection of Martin Luther King Jr. Avenue and Anaheim Street and end at Martin Luther King Jr. Park.

Chosen for exemplifying Dr. King's community service leadership, here are the grand marshals for this year's parade:

•Dale E. Clinton - A lifelong social justice advocate who has served on several local community boards in Long Beach, fighting for the rights of poor mothers as well as pushing for welfare rights, fair housing, economic development and the betterment of marginalized communities.

•Samuel "Skip" and Beth Keesal - The philanthropic founders of the Keesal, Young & Logan Charitable Foundation, which has given nearly $7 million to local organizations, have also provided pro bono legal work for several organizations.

•Veronica Garcia Dávalos - A 30-year veteran of nonprofit organizing, she is the Executive Director/CEO of the Long Beach Public Library Foundation and co-founder of the United Latino Fund and National Latina Alliance.

•Chanwantha Sam Limon - The first Cambodian American woman to hold a chief role in human resources for the biggest social services department in the country. She also co-founded the Spirit of Khmer Angkor and has served on the board of the Aquarium of the Pacific and co-chair of the Long Beach Sankranta.

•2024 Long Beach Poly High School Boys and Girls Track and Field teams - In 2024, the Jackrabbits boy's team clinched their first state title since 2011, and both the boy's and girl's teams won CIF-SS championships led by coach Crystal Irving.

•2024 Wilson High School Girls Track and Field team - Last year, the Bruins girl's track team secured back-to-back state championships, creating a standard of excellence for the program under coaches Neil Nelson and Shannon Fisher.

The parade will be followed by a celebration at Martin Luther King Jr. Park (1950 Lemon Ave.) featuring live entertainment, food and merchandise vendors, a kid's zone and more from noon to 5 p.m.

The entertainment lineup, including occasional sets by DJ Infinite E. throughout the day, is as follows:

•12:15 p.m. - 12:30 p.m. - Performance by Gravity Dance Company

•12:30 p.m. - 1 p.m. - Performance by bass player and artist AJ Luke

•1 p.m. - 1:30 p.m. - Program and announcements

•2 p.m. - 3 p.m. - Performance by saxophonist JQuailT

•3:30 p.m. - 4:30 p.m. - Performance by Grammy-nominated recording artist Ms. Anita Wilson

•4:30 p.m. - 5 p.m. - DJ Infinite E. with AJ Luke

A change.org petition calling for the City of Long Beach to transfer the management of the parade to a "viable Black nonprofit" was created on Monday, Jan. 13.

As of Jan. 16, the petition has received 275 signatures.

The petition lists the following demands:

•The City of Long Beach publicly acknowledges the harm caused by this decision on the same media platforms used to promote the parade and celebration and one printed publication.

•This should occur by the next City Council meeting scheduled for January 21, 2025.

• [Organizers] expect to meet with the 6th District Council member within 30 calendar days from the date of the MLK Parade and Celebration to discuss the results in further detail.

• The transfer of the 2026 responsibilities regarding the managing, planning, and execution of the parade and celebration. This will require shifting from the 6th District Council office to a viable Black nonprofit. The Black community in Long Beach will select the nonprofit via a community survey. The community includes businesses, nonprofits, and faith leaders of the City of Long Beach. This will ensure the parade truly honors Dr. King's legacy and reflects the richness of Black culture.

•The continued support and sponsorship from the Mayor and City Council.

The grand marshals announcement has since received backlash from several residents for a lack of Black representation, with Clinton being the only Black individual serving as grand marshal. Two local high school sports teams with Black athletes were appointed as a group to be grand marshals, but are serving in that role as a group rather than individuals.

Former Long Beach Naval Station and Shipyard, Long Beach, CA
Notice of Basewide Five-Year Review Completion
Installation Restoration Sites 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6A, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, and 14

The United States Department of the Navy (Navy), as the lead agency, has completed the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (CERCLA) Five-Year Review (5YR) for environmental cleanup activities (remedies) at the former Naval Station Long Beach and the former Long Beach Naval Shipyard, referred to as the "former Long Beach Naval Complex" (LBNC) in Long Beach, California. During the recent 5YR, the Navy determined that the selected remedies at the former LBNC remain protective of human health and the environment.

The former LBNC is located on Terminal Island in Los Angeles County near the Port of Long Beach. The Navy conducted the 5YR in accordance with CERCLA Section 121(c) to evaluate the effectiveness of the remedies outlined in the Records of Decision (RODs) and to ensure the remedies continue to be protective of human health and the environment. CERCLA requires a review every five years for remedies that leave contaminants in place above levels that allow for unlimited use and unrestricted exposure.

The LBNC was divided into 14 Installation Restoration Program (IRP) Sites for environmental investigation and remediation based on the chemicals of concern at each IRP Site. The remedies for IRP sites 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6A, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, and 14 were implemented to address chemicals of concern in soil, sediment, soil gas, and/or groundwater that posed potential risk to human health and the environment. The remedies included soil removal, soil covers, groundwater treatment, groundwater monitoring, soil vapor extraction and monitoring, and/or institutional controls to prohibit residential development. Land Use Covenants filed with the Los Angeles County Recorder's Office ensure that land use at the former LBNC will remain unchanged. The 5YR report updates the status of the remedial actions since the previous 5YR (2019).

The Final CERCLA 5YR Report is available for public inspection at the following website and location: <https://www.bracpmo.navy.mil/BRAC-Bases/California/Former-Long-Beach-Naval-Complex/>

Young residents invited to brainstorm ideas for Youth Power PB Long Beach

Richard H. Grant | Signal Tribune

An attendee of the People's Budget Long Beach uses chalk to write "Invest in Youth" during the rally at Long Beach City Hall on Aug. 2, 2022.

Staff Report

Signal Tribune

The third iteration of the Youth Power Participatory Budgeting (PB) Long Beach has begun, and youth ages 13 to 26 are invited to make their voices heard. Now through Feb. 1, local youth can share their ideas for how $550,000 should be spent on youth summer projects.

This effort is led by Long Beach Health and Human Services' Office of Youth Development, along with The Nonprofit Partnership, Invest in Youth Coalition and Khmer Girls in Action.

"Long Beach is committed to fostering youth leadership and community engagement," said Mayor Rex Richardson in a public statement. "The youth participatory budgeting process is a powerful way to elevate youth voices, empowering them to shape programs and initiatives that directly impact their growth and success."

The Youth Power PB funding comes from Measure US and the City's Adopted Budget for Fiscal Year 2025, with this year's amount almost doubling the total funds allocated during the program's first cycle in 2023. These funds will be allocated to project budgets, with amounts ranging from $10,000 to $50,000. Youth who live, work or play in Long Beach will decide which proposals to fund.

The 2025 cycle of Youth Power PB will begin with a series of in-person brainstorming sessions across the city, ensuring youth from various neighborhoods can make their voices heard. Youth need to only attend one session to submit their ideas for youth summer projects.

The sessions will take place at the following dates and times:

- Thursday, Jan. 23 from 4:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. at Whaley Park (5620 E. Atherton St.)
- Thursday, Jan. 30 from 4:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. at Houghton Park (6301 Myrtle Ave.)
- Saturday, Feb. 1 from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. at the Youth Movement and Education Center (2217 E. Sixth St.)

Pet of the week: Paris

Did you know that you can foster a cat or a dog from Long Beach Animal Care Services? Fostering does so much good for our shelter pets. It gives them personal attention inside a loving home and a break from kennel confinement — even with the love that volunteers give shelter animals, there are still those lonely nights. They get accustomed to a home situation and learn trust. And in emergency situations like the Long Beach fireworks season or the wildfires, fostering a shelter pet makes room in a kennel for someone else's displaced best friend. Paris, 4 years old, is one of the lucky dogs who's spending some time in a home. Her family said that she's easy to care for, is laid-back and calm, and loves belly rubs, hanging out, going for walks and just bonding. Paris was surrendered by her previous owner, so she knows what a home is like. Make an appointment to meet her, and give her forever! Speed the process to adopt Paris or any of our other pets by emailing PetAdopt@longbeach.gov or petfoster@longbeach.gov. You can also call (562) 570-4925. Our shelter hours are Wednesday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at 7700 E. Spring St. at the entrance to El Dorado Park (no parking fee for shelter visitors. Ask for IDA724668.
